I. SUMMARY OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE REVIEW PROCESS

A. Presentation by the State under review

5. A sa dixième séance, le 6 février 2009, S.E. Maître Madické Niang, Ministre d'Etat, Garde des Sceaux, Ministre de la Justice, a présenté le rapport national. Il a rappelé que le Sénégal demeure toujours convaincu qu'un respect effectif des droits de l'homme contribue au développement des Etats, et à l'avènement d'un ordre international fondé sur la justice, la paix et la sécurité. Les contraintes de temps ne lui permettant pas de faire état de tous les efforts consentis par le Sénégal en faveur de la promotion et de la protection des droits de l'homme, S.E. Maître Madické Niang s'est limité à mentionner les actions majeures.

6. Les droits et libertés fondamentaux inscrits dans les instruments juridiques internationaux sont consacrés dans la Constitution sénégalaise. Le Sénégal a mis en place différents mécanismes de promotion et de protection des droits de l'homme, notamment :

a) Le Comité sénégalais des droits de l'homme (CSDH), créé en 1970, structure indépendante et financièrement autonome, dotée, depuis 1999, d'un régime « A » par le Comité International de Coordination (CIC) ;

b) Le Haut Commissariat aux Droits de l'Homme et à la Promotion de la Paix (HCDHPP), créé en 2004, chargé de protéger et promouvoir tous les droits humains ;

c) Le Médiateur de la République, créé en 1991, avec une mission principale de médiation entre l'administration et les citoyens et disposant d'un pouvoir d'auto-saisine.

7. Faisant suite à la ratification du Protocole additionnel à la Convention contre la torture (OP-CAT), en 2006, l'Assemblée nationale vient d'adopter un projet de loi instituant un nouveau mécanisme de prévention de la torture, à savoir l'Observateur national des lieux de privation de liberté (ONLPL).

8. Le Sénégal s'honore du choix porté sur sa capitale pour accueillir le bureau régional pour l'Afrique de l'Ouest du Haut Commissariat des Nations Unies aux droits de l'homme (HCDH).

9. Le Sénégal a alloué à l'éducation des ressources financières significatives au cours de ces dernières années, soit aujourd'hui quarante-deux pour cent du budget de fonctionnement de l'Etat. Ces efforts ont contribué à une amélioration importante du taux de scolarisation dans l'enseignement primaire. Ils ont permis au Sénégal de tendre vers la scolarisation universelle et, surtout, vers la réduction des disparités de genre et des disparités régionales et entre milieux.

10. En ce qui concerne la petite enfance, le Sénégal a initié depuis 2004 le programme national de la Case des tout petits, salué par l'UNESCO, qui assure la prise en charge des enfants de 0 à 6 ans issus des milieux défavorisés en leur assurant à la fois l'enseignement, la santé et l'alimentation.

11. Le Sénégal a affecté au droit à la santé des ressources publiques qui dépassent les normes internationales fixées par l'OMS, illustrant ainsi sa volonté de faire de l'accès universel aux services de santé un droit effectif pour l'ensemble de sa population. Différents programmes nationaux ont été élaborés, incluant des volets relatifs aux problèmes spécifiques à certains groupes sociaux vulnérables comme les enfants de la rue, les élèves de certaines écoles coraniques, les enfants touchés par le VIH/Sida et les personnes handicapées. Le Sénégal a également institué au profit des personnes démunies du troisième âge, un plan appelé Sésame, leur permettant de bénéficier de la gratuité des soins et d'un certain nombre de médicaments.

12. Pour respecter ses engagements internationaux concernant la non-discrimination à l'égard des femmes, le Sénégal a mené une réforme progressive et irrévocable pour constamment améliorer sa législation. S'agissant de la protection de l'intégrité physique des femmes, le Sénégal ne s'est pas arrêté à l'adoption de mesures répressives consistant en l'incrimination des mutilations génitales féminines (FGM), des violences qui leur sont faites ainsi que de la traite des personnes à des fins d'exploitation sexuelle ; il a aussi mené, de façon continue, d'importantes actions de sensibilisation. Ainsi, le 15 décembre 2008, l'Observatoire national des droits de la femme (ONDF) a été institué. Quant à la question de l'accès des femmes à la propriété foncière, elle a trouvé sa solution dans l'article 15 de la Constitution.

13. La protection de l'enfance reste un secteur de haute priorité de la politique sénégalaise. En effet, outre la ratification des principaux instruments internationaux pertinents, le Sénégal a entrepris des actions significatives pour rendre ces droits effectifs. Ainsi, un code de l'enfant est en cours d'élaboration.

14. Concernant les droits civils et politiques, le Sénégal a rappelé qu'il a une longue tradition de respect des libertés. La liberté de manifestation et la liberté d'expression et de pensée sont ainsi garanties par la Constitution.

15. Le Sénégal continuera à œuvrer dans le sens de la promotion et de la protection des droits de l'homme et reste ouvert à toute forme de coopération dans ce domaine, en particulier avec les détenteurs de mandats dans le cadre des procédures spéciales. Le Ministre d'Etat a d'ailleurs rappelé que le Sénégal avait déjà réservé une réponse positive à toutes les demandes de visites faites à ce jour.

B. Interactive dialogue and responses by the State under review

16. During the interactive dialogue, statements were made by 60 delegations. Additional statements by 5 delegations which could not be delivered during the dialogue due to time constraints are posted on the UPR extranet when available.¹

17. A number of delegations thanked Senegal for the comprehensive national report and its open, candid and self-critical presentation and for the responses provided to advance questions. Statements were made welcoming Senegal's commitment to the UPR process, its constructive participation and the broad-based consultations with stakeholders that took place in preparing the national report.

It noted Senegal's policies and action plans for children's and women's empowerment, and efforts made regarding juvenile justice. Nigeria noted Senegal's challenges, including inadequate finances, capacity-building and technical know-how. Nigeria called on the international community to support Senegal in the creation of wealth, the fight against poverty, and the provision of basic social services to further promote and protect human rights. Nigeria encouraged Senegal to continue to improve its policies and programmes for strengthening the capacities of its national institutions and public decision-making authorities and to improve the legislative and judicial environment, as well as the overall human rights infrastructure.

19. Algeria stressed Senegal's commitment to the rights of migrant workers and encouraged Senegal to continue with its commitment to promoting awareness among the largest number of countries regarding the importance of ratifying the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families (ICRMW). Algeria requested information on the implementation of the GOANA plan and recommended that Senegal continue its efforts to guarantee the right to food for the Senegalese people and consider requesting technical assistance from OHCHR on the right to food. It welcomed Senegal's efforts to reaffirm the tolerant and peaceful nature of Islam and encouraged the Government to continue with its international commitment to promoting a spirit of tolerance and dialogue between religions, civilizations and cultures.

20. Morocco noted the reflection of Senegal's commitment to human rights in the Constitution, which recognizes the pre-eminence of international agreements over national law. It noted the ratification of almost all international human rights instruments. Morocco noted the legislative and institutional infrastructure and recommended that Senegal continue with its efforts to harmonize its reforms and consolidate its mechanisms and institutions. Noting that the fight against poverty is a priority, Morocco recommended that Senegal continue and strengthen its efforts to combat poverty and asked the international community to give Senegal the necessary assistance in that regard.

21. Sudan noted the ratification of the Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC) and the African Convention on the Welfare of the Child. It noted the Pre-School Children Fund, programmes to combat human trafficking, and laws to protect women's rights. Sudan recommended that Senegal continue its efforts to eradicate poverty, achieve the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs), and coordinate its efforts with other developing countries and stakeholders.

22. Tunisia welcomed the ratification of most international human rights instruments, their incorporation in the Constitution and the establishment of institutions for the promotion of human rights. It noted the creation of mechanisms to tackle poverty through a programme of assistance and through microcredit and asked about the coordination and regulation of these mechanisms.

23. Iran noted the measures taken for the realization of economic, social and cultural rights, including the right to development, and for achievement of the MDGs. While welcoming the education budget allocation, Iran noted the need for more work to guarantee free access to education. Iran asked about measures to promote employment and implement protective programmes, achievements in poverty reduction, education and health and the extent to which the MDGs will be achieved. Iran recommended that Senegal take all appropriate and necessary measures for better and speedy realization of social, economic and cultural rights and particularly the right to development. It also recommended Senegal foster the human rights culture among society with a view to further promoting and protecting human rights.

24. Indonesia commended the laws: making education free and compulsory for children aged 1-16; prohibiting the employment of children under 15 years of age, and prohibiting all forms of violence against and corruption of minors. Indonesia stressed that Senegal has ratified and participated in the codification of many international conventions. It recommended that Senegal continue its efforts to diminish the proportion of the urban population living in slums, so as to fulfil the rights of families to decent housing conditions. It noted the challenge identified by UNESCO of closing the primary-education enrolment gap while at the same time addressing issues of quality and recommended that the Government of Senegal take steps to address it.

25. Turkey, while noting Senegal's delay in reporting to treaty bodies, welcomed the Government's willingness to submit several of its reports. Turkey encouraged Senegal to welcome special procedures' mandate holders and to provide the best possible conditions in order for them to carry out their missions. It commended the priority given to education and the importance given to the protection of children's rights. Turkey recommended that Senegal take into consideration the comments made by the Committee on the Rights of the Child concerning the adoption of a global strategy in order to eliminate all forms of discrimination against vulnerable groups of children. Turkey also encouraged Senegal, which has significant experience thanks to its active participation in the 2001 Durban World Conference, to continue to contribute positively to the review process.

26. Vietnam commended Senegal's National Strategy on Poverty Alleviation, education reform measures and HIV/AIDS prevention programmes. It welcomed Senegal's accession to key international human rights treaties and its cooperation with special procedures. Vietnam recognized that protection of the rights of vulnerable groups is among the major challenges and recommended that Senegal continue its efforts and take effective measures to overcome it.

27. Cuba noted the strategy to fight poverty, promote social services and improve living conditions. It congratulated the promotion of the right to food, social protection, health, education and the rights of children and women. Cuba welcomed Senegal's initiatives in strengthening dialogue among civilizations, cultures and religions. Cuba recommended that Senegal continue its efforts and initiatives to promote dialogue, peace and tolerance amongst peoples, cultures, religions and civilizations.

28. The Netherlands noted cases of apparent violation of the independence of the courts and recommended Senegal safeguard the separation of powers and independence of the judiciary. With regard to incidents with journalists and journalism, the Netherlands recommended Senegal decriminalize press offences. It noted that the Penal Code criminalizes homosexual conduct and recommended that Senegal remove the article in question, which is not in compliance with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. The Netherlands welcomed the creation of the National Observatory of Women's Rights (ONDF) but expressed concern about the persistent de jure and de facto inequality between men and women. It asked if the ONDF already reported cases and submitted suggestions for improvement.

29. The Libyan Arab Jamahiriya noted the enshrinement of human rights in the Constitution, the number of laws enacted and the ratification of several international instruments, including the Convention against Torture (CAT) and the optional protocols to the CRC. It asked about the measures taken to launch the campaign for agriculture and the right to food and to increase the production of basic food.

30. Qatar noted that the Constitution guarantees equality to all and welcomed the efforts made to promote human rights, including the rights to education, health and housing. Qatar commended the peaceful coexistence and tolerance, particularly between Christians and Muslims. It welcomed efforts to eradicate poverty and requested information on the methods and resources to address the problem of HIV/AIDS.

31. Switzerland welcomed Senegal's determination to make human rights a priority. It recommended that Senegal (a) take specific and effective measures required to ensure respect for freedom of expression and freedom of association; (b) contribute towards combating impunity internationally, in particular by implementing the mandate given to Senegal by the African Union to try the former head of State of Chad, M. Hissène Habré; (c) ensure the implementation of the provisions of law 99-05 prohibiting female genital mutilation (FGM) and organize an effective national campaign to prevent and eradicate this practice; and (d) step up its efforts to implement the CRC, particularly in the areas of juvenile justice, trafficking of children and child labour. Switzerland expressed concern about reports of arbitrary detentions of individuals based on their sexual orientation and emphasized the importance of ensuring the full enjoyment of the rights of all persons without discrimination.

32. Pakistan noted the work of the CSDH for the promotion of human rights and the steps taken for the protection of the rights of people with disabilities, including special schools for professional training. Pakistan praised the legislation to combat smuggling of migrants. Pakistan recommended that this law be made available to countries facing problems of smuggling of migrants, in order to help them to develop such laws. Pakistan welcomed the measures taken to eliminate poverty despite Senegal's vulnerability to natural disasters.

33. France asked about women's rights and the elimination of discrimination, including polygamy, succession rules, and FGM. France noted the cooperation with Special Procedures and inquired about a standing invitation to all of them. France recommended the abrogation of article 80 of the Criminal Code concerning infringement of State security, which restricts the right to freedom of expression and, in the light of recent prohibitions of demonstrations and pressures on the organizers of certain political meetings, it further recommended that Senegal ensure the effective freedom of demonstration and freedom of association.

34. Chad indicated that Senegal is a beacon of democracy in Africa and noted the institutional structures established for the protection and promotion of human rights. It saluted Senegal's commitment to ensuring the right to food and asked for the international community's support for further improvement in the field of human rights.

35. The United Kingdom welcomed the HCDHPP and the CSDH and encouraged Senegal to ensure their operation within the Paris Principles. It commended the commitment to OP-CAT and expressed hope that consideration would be given to provisions on visits and funding. It recommended that Senegal continue its awareness-raising campaigns to combat and eradicate FGM and other traditional harmful practices against women and girls. It noted concerns regarding the prohibition of some forms of sexual activity between consenting adults and recommended that Senegal's Criminal Code be amended to decriminalize homosexual activity between consenting adults. It noted concerns expressed over the detention of journalists and freedom of expression in the media. The United Kingdom recommended that Senegal take forward plans to decriminalize press offences as agreed by the President of the Republic in 2004 and as reported to the United Nations Special Rapporteur on the promotion and protection of the right to freedom of opinion and expression.

36. Côte d'Ivoire noted Senegal's political will concerning the provision of sanitation in areas where this service is lacking and the realization of land and housing rights. It also noted Senegal's commitment to implement the "Education for All" project, which has increased access to primary education and improve the quality of teaching. It recommended that the international community strengthen its support for Senegal, which remains a model for democracy in Africa, particularly with respect to the promotion of economic, social and cultural rights.

37. Belgium expressed concern about the criminalization of homosexuality, as well as the harassment and discrimination of which homosexuals are victim. In this respect, reference was made to the recent arrest of nine persons and their sentencing to eight-year prison terms because of their sexual orientation. Belgium recommended that Senegal decriminalize homosexuality and free all persons imprisoned on the grounds of their sexual orientation. It recommended that Senegal respect and protect the human rights and the fundamental freedoms of all persons without any form of discrimination. Further, noting that journalists have faced pressure, threats and other acts of intimidation, and occasionally imprisonment. it recommended that Senegal revise its legislation on freedom of the press in order to bring it into line with international standards.

38. While recognizing the freedom of expression and noting Senegal's intention to further reform the national press law, Sweden expressed concern about reports of harassment and intimidations of journalist and mass media outlets. Sweden recommended Senegal take further measures, including legislative action, to ensure full respect for the freedom of expression and freedom of the press, in accordance with international standards. Sweden noted the concerns expressed by the Committee on the Rights of the Child regarding corporal punishment, despite a legal ban, and recommended Senegal continue its efforts and take necessary policy measures to ensure that children are protected from corporal punishment and other forms of violence or exploitation.

39. Luxembourg supported the recommendation of the Committee on the Rights of the Child that Senegal continue carrying out awareness-raising campaigns to combat and eliminate FGM and other traditional practices that are harmful to health and seek to bring about positive trends in traditional behaviour. Luxembourg supported the recommendation of the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (CESCR) to better implement laws aimed at eliminating all forms of violence against women. It also supports the recommendations by the Committee on the Rights of the Child that Senegal ensure that the law against sexual exploitation of children be better implemented and take better measures to protect girls engaged in domestic work from economic exploitation and sexual abuse. Luxembourg noted reports of torture within detention centres, infringement on the independence of justice and restrictions on press freedom. Luxembourg noted Senegal's fight against poverty and welcomed its partnership to reach the MDGs and to contribute to good governance.

40. Slovenia commended the cooperation with UN-HABITAT in slum upgrading and realization of land and housing rights. It commended the abolishment of the death penalty and the ratification of most human rights treaties and encouraged submission of periodic reports and answers to Special Procedures mandate holders' questionnaires. It expressed concern over working children and over arbitrary arrests, harassment and discrimination on grounds of sexual orientation or gender identity. It recommended Senegal review national legislation which results in the discrimination, prosecution and punishment of people solely for their sexual orientation or gender identity. Slovenia noted reports of restrictions on the freedoms of expression, association and assembly and recommended that Senegal protect the rights of assembly and freedom of expression. It noted the concern of the Committee on the Rights of the Child at the lack of juvenile judges, the insufficient number of juvenile courts and the detention of girls in adult prisons.

41. The Democratic Republic of Congo noted Senegal's ratification of many international instruments and the legal approach adopted in legal proceedings including allowing persons to object to a law which infringes human rights. It highlighted policies in favour of people of vulnerable age and the recognition of equality and the role of women. It requested information regarding the changes made to institutions, including the National Assembly. It encouraged Senegal to pursue its policy regarding persons with HIV and the elderly, which makes its commitment to the cause of human rights more concrete.

42. The Holy See noted the constitutional provision on free practice of religious beliefs and commended Senegal's involvement in interreligious dialogue. It noted the apparent tendency to limit the freedom of journalists and recommended that the police and armed forces receive training on human rights and freedom of the press in order to prevent any deterioration in this respect. The Holy See noted the high maternal mortality and recommended that Senegal further invest in achieving the MDG on maternal health, including access to equipment, drugs and supplies; transportation for medical referrals; and partnerships with other medical personnel. Acknowledging the priority given to education, the Holy See recommended that Senegal further invest in education and give special attention to the education of girls and young women.

43. China noted the reduction of poverty as a priority and acknowledged progress in the promotion of the right to health, education and culture. China noted progress in the elimination of discrimination against women and the protection of children's rights. China asked about measures planned by Senegal to alleviate the impact of the food crisis and the financial crisis on the rights of its people.

44. Ghana noted the efforts aimed at ensuring an adequate standard of living, providing support to vulnerable groups, and securing the right to health and education. It welcomed the enactment of legislation criminalizing sexual harassment and domestic violence against women and recommended that Senegal increase its efforts to eliminate all forms of discrimination against women, including by adopting effective measures to implement relevant existing legislation. It also recommended that Senegal, with the assistance of the international community, increase its efforts to speed up the implementation of the next phase of its Poverty Reduction Strategy Paper with a view to promoting the right to an adequate standard of living.

45. Germany asked about measures to guarantee equality and to abolish discrimination of children born out of wedlock, children with disabilities, children affected by HIV/AIDS, girls, street children and talibés. Germany recommended that Senegal continue its efforts to effectively combat human trafficking, to protect child victims of sexual exploitation and to prevent the abuse of girls as domestic servants. It also recommended that Senegal expand its efforts to ensure universal access to maternal and child health-care services and facilities, in particular in rural and remote areas. Germany recommended that Senegal continue to take all necessary measures to ensure that teachers are adequately trained, that girls and boys from all areas have equal access to education and that enrolment in primary and secondary education, including in rural and less developed areas, increases significantly.

46. Yemen noted the ratification of almost all international human rights instruments and that these take precedence over the Constitution. Yemen noted Senegal's efforts, for which the international community's support was needed, to promote a culture of respect for human rights and to build institutions in that regard.

47. Oman noted the number of ratified international instruments and the establishment of many institutions, including the regional office of OHCHR. It noted Senegal's active participation in education and in the realization of civil and political, economic, social and cultural rights. It recommended accepting the support of OHCHR in the area of dissemination of human rights in order to support national cultural and education programmes.

48. Le chef de la délégation a remercié l'ensemble des délégations pour les remarques positives faites sur la situation des droits de l'homme au Sénégal. Concernant la justice pour mineurs, le Sénégal s'est engagé à renforcer les capacités, améliorer les structures et à former le personnel. Un effort important est fait car ces enfants doivent être protégés.

49. Le Sénégal s'est engagé pour une ratification plus large de la ICRMW car il se sent concerné et partage l'idéal du texte. Avec l'adoption du Plan intitulé « Grande Offensive pour l'Agriculture, la nourriture et l'Abondance (GOANA) », le Sénégal a considéré que la solution, face à la crise mondiale, se trouvait dans l'utilisation de ses potentialités, avec le soutien de la coopération internationale, notamment par la mise à disposition d'équipements et de techniques agricoles. Les premiers résultats sont encourageants et le Sénégal demande à la communauté internationale de continuer à le soutenir pour qu'il atteigne l'autosuffisance alimentaire.

50. S'agissant de la démarche participative pour la rédaction de son rapport, le Sénégal a rappelé que c'est une méthode qui a été érigée en principe. Ainsi pour toute action, le pays fait appel à la société civile pour assurer une certaine symbiose.

51. Le Sénégal est partie à toutes les organisations qui luttent contre le trafic des êtres humains et la police sénégalaise est très active dans ce domaine.

52. Le chef de la délégation a souligné que la liberté de la presse est mieux respectée au Sénégal que nulle part ailleurs au monde. Il convient toutefois de comprendre que cette liberté doit s'exercer en respectant des limites liées à la liberté d'autrui. L'exercice excessif de la liberté d'expression a débouché sur des procès au Sénégal, comme dans d'autres pays. Ces procès ont été intentés à la suite de plaintes de citoyens devant des juridictions qui agissent en toute indépendance.

53. Réagissant aux interventions relatives à des poursuites contre des personnes pour leur orientation sexuelle, le chef de délégation a précisé que l'homosexualité est une question purement privée, connue depuis longtemps au Sénégal et ne faisant pas l'objet de poursuites. Les poursuites auxquelles il est fait référence n'ont eu lieu que lorsque les relations homosexuelles se sont déroulées de manière publique et tapageuse, les plaçant ainsi en position contraire aux mœurs et à la religion. Sur la dépénalisation, il faut prendre en compte la culture et éviter de développer des rejets et de mettre en péril la vie des homosexuels.

54. Le Sénégal a entrepris de grands efforts pour l'égalité des genres, y compris au moyen de la discrimination positive. Cependant, il convient de prendre en considération les particularités liées à la religion musulmane, laquelle explique l'existence de la polygamie. Dans le cas de celle-ci, l'aliénation de la femme n'existe plus puisqu'elle entre librement en union polygame.

55. La délégation a rappelé que le Sénégal est prêt à répondre positivement à toute demande émanant des procédures spéciales.

56. S'agissant de la liberté d'expression, une commission discute actuellement de la question de la dépénalisation [des délits de presse]. La formation des journalistes est importante pour permettre à ceux-ci de respecter les règles, même s'il convient de savoir, qu'à ce jour, seul un journaliste est en prison au Sénégal. Ce genre de condamnation se retrouve dans toute démocratie. Pour la liberté d'association, elle est pleinement garantie au Sénégal sauf s'il y a des risques réels de troubles à l'ordre public et un recours est toujours possible devant une juridiction. Cette liberté est inscrite dans la Constitution.

57. L'indépendance de la magistrature est également respectée. S'agissant de la composition du Conseil de la magistrature, elle fait l'objet de discussion et, à l'heure actuelle, seuls le président de la République et le ministre de la Justice ne sont pas des magistrats. Ainsi, même lorsque le ministre de la Justice désire faire muter un magistrat par une décision du Conseil de la magistrature, ce sont les magistrats qui décident car ils ont la majorité.

58. La délégation a rappelé qu'en matière de liberté de la presse, l'État octroie notamment des bourses de formation, des aides pour la création de radios communautaires et associatives et fournit une aide à hauteur d'un million de dollars. Ces aides sont attribuées au travers d'un collectif dans lequel l'État est minoritaire et une maison de la presse sera mise en place en 2010. Cette liberté de la presse est caractérisée par la présence d'une forte majorité de médias de l'opposition.

59. S'agissant de la torture dans les lieux de détention, la délégation a reconnu l'existence de cas qui font l'objet d'enquêtes systématiques qui conduisent, le cas échéant, à une condamnation en plus de sanctions disciplinaires. A cet égard, en 2001, a été créé le juge d'application des peines et, une fois que le Sénat l'aura adopté, l'ONLPL sera institué. Ses rapports seront publics. Au Sénégal, la torture est prohibée et s'il y a des indices probants de torture, une procédure est engagée.

60. S'agissant du plan de réduction de la pauvreté, il est entré dans sa deuxième phase et cible plus particulièrement les femmes et les enfants. L'enfance est particulièrement protégée et, en plus de la ratification de toutes les Conventions pertinentes, le Sénégal prend en compte les enfants dans les familles, les écoles et dans les milieux ouverts, tels que la rue. A ce titre, le Sénégal est en train de régler la question des talibés en aidant les écoles coraniques. Le châtiment corporel est interdit et un maître coranique a été condamné en assises pour cette raison.

61. Le chef de la délégation a conclu en précisant que les interventions lui avaient permis de prendre conscience de ce qui avait été fait au Sénégal et de tirer des leçons pour engager des mesures visant à une amélioration continue de la situation.

62. The United Arab Emirates noted that the Constitution reflects the rights and principles of international conventions. It welcomed the efforts made to establish an institutionally-based rule of law. It noted that according to the national report, human rights are not necessarily well known by everyone and encouraged Senegal to step up its efforts to develop programmes and take action to publicize human rights.

63. Canada welcomed the adoption of a law modifying the Constitution, which will allow Hissène Habré to be tried by the Senegalese justice. Canada was concerned about the fact that homosexuality is criminally repressed and recommended that Senegal modify its Criminal Code to abolish the criminalization of homosexual acts, in line with the provisions of ICCPR, particularly articles 2 and 26. Canada noted that, despite the legislation punishing it, violence against women continues. It recommended that Senegal take measures to raise awareness among the public and all players involved in the judicial system regarding the need to respect and apply this legislation. Canada recommended that Senegal respect the commitments concerning the freedom of expression which it undertook by ratifying the ICCPR. Canada noted that access to the legal system remains problematic and recommended that Senegal put in place means and mechanisms to raise awareness among its citizens regarding access to justice.

64. The Philippines noted the ratification of nearly all human rights instruments, the enactment of laws against smuggling of migrants, human trafficking and the protection of victims, and the abolition of the death penalty. The Philippines recommended that Senegal continue its efforts to implement these national laws. It also recommended that Senegal continue its efforts to promote women's rights and the right to health, particularly that of children, through enhancing international cooperation in these fields.

65. Palestine noted Senegal's ratification of international human rights instruments and encouraged their consolidation through structures including the Senegalese Committee of Human Rights. Palestine highlighted social development funds and poverty reduction programmes. Palestine recommended the Government of Senegal pursue efforts for the elimination of all forms of discrimination against women and also recommended Senegal increase its involvement in the field of international cooperation to tackle the consequences of the international food and economic crises.

66. Burkina Faso noted the abolishment of the death penalty, the priority given to education, and the search for equality between men and women. It encouraged Senegal to pursue its efforts, despite the constraints that a developing country is always facing, to consolidate its institutions in accordance with democratic principles and human rights. It called on OHCHR and the international community to support Senegal in these efforts. Burkina Faso invited Senegal to share its experience in pursuing the effective realization of human rights at bilateral and sub-regional levels and hailed the initiative taken for a dialogue between civilizations through the holding in Dakar of a high-level meeting on the Islamic-Christian dialogue.

67. Haiti noted Senegal's participation in the promotion of human rights. Noting that Senegal has signed the Convention on Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CPD), the Optional Protocol (OP-CPD) thereto and the Convention on the Protection of all Persons from Enforced Disappearances (CED), it recommended that they be ratified as soon as possible. It also recommended Senegal take steps to ensure the right to education to Senegalese children who cannot follow the regular curriculum.

68. Bahrain acknowledged the efforts to promote political, economic, social and cultural rights and welcomed Senegal's efforts as chair of the Organisation of the Islamic Conference (OIC) to promote freedom of religion and dialogue among cultures, as demonstrated by the convening of a conference on the Islamic-Christian dialogue. Bahrain welcomed Senegal's efforts to promote the right to education, a national priority. It requested further information on the financial resources allocated to the education sector.

69. Angola commended Senegal's legislation on the freedom of press. Angola welcomed the peaceful coexistence amongst various religious groups. It noted the efforts made to reduce poverty and asked how the international community intends to support these efforts. Angola welcomed the initiatives undertaken in the education sector, including the budget increase. It recommended that Senegal continue to promote measures to strengthen the educational system.
