4. A list of questions prepared in advance by Denmark, Germany, Ireland, Liechtenstein, Netherlands, Norway, Slovenia, Sweden and United Kingdom was transmitted to Bahrain through the troika. These questions are available on the extranet of the UPR.

I. Summary of the proceedings of the review process

A. Presentation by the State under review

5. The Head of delegation expressed Bahrain's appreciation to the Council and to the international organizations of the United Nations for the support provided to the Kingdom, especially thanked the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights, for the program on the Universal Periodic Review during the past four years, which contributed effectively to enhance the capacity of the concerned authorities regarding the implementation of commitments and recommendations of the UPR, and hoped to continue this fruitful cooperation and support in the future.
6. Bahrain reminded that it is the first member state in the Human Rights Council to undergo the periodical review in 2008. Having 565 NGOs as in early 2012, Bahrain reviewed the current second report including achievements realized with partnership of all concerned entities including governmental, non-governmental organizations as well as the activists from civil society.
7. The delegation stated that the past four years were full of events and developments that much was documented in the advancement of human rights at various levels, and the Kingdom does not pretend to be perfect and free from some of the obstacles that hinder the implementation of the recommendations and commitments, but with determination and will of honest work Bahrain will overcome these constraints.

8. Major achievements have been reviewed during the past 4 years, starting with education. Bahrain pays full attention to this sector, commits and provides educational and cultural services to citizens as a right, prescribed in its constitution and education law. Education For All Global Monitoring Report for 2011 showed that Bahrain is among states of high performance achieving the EFA's goals.

9. The delegation informed of the National Strategic Plan for Human Rights Education that was reviewed based on the commitment in 2008, and a plan was developed to encourage a human rights culture. A special subject on human rights has been included in the citizenship course for all classes at different levels of education.

10. The delegation stated that the constitution of Bahrain provided for the right of all citizens to enjoy equal health standards, without discrimination. In support to such right, the Ministry of Health prepared developmental programs and plans in collaboration with the World Health Organization and the government bears the full expenses of treatment whenever it is inaccessible locally.

11. The delegation stated that Bahrain women have assumed leading positions and proactive steps have been taken to involve them in activities alongside men. Bahraini women are being empowered to be further involved in decision-making, leading and ministerial positions, as well as in the private sector, civil society institutions and political associations. The establishment of the Supreme Council for Women in Bahrain is a milestone in the process of women empowerment. The Council is in process of studying the removal of reservations on the Convention on Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women or amend them so as to be consistent with national legislation and laws while preserving the sovereignty of the state.

12. In respect of the nationality, the delegation informed of the discussions currently underway on proposed amendments to the nationality law, in order to grant Bahraini nationality to children of Bahraini women who are married to a non-Bahraini husbands, in conformity with the regulations and constructive standards preserving their rights.

13. In the same context, the delegation informed of the gains of women, such as Law No. 35 for 2009 which was promulgated to cover the treatment of non-Bahraini wives of Bahraini husbands in the same manner as Bahraini citizens as concerns some fees of government provided services.

14. The delegation stated that the Supreme Council for Women played an effective role in the issuance of the provisions of the Family Law - part one pertaining to the Sunni Section which is considered as implementation of the Kingdom of Bahrain's obligations from the year 2008. Efforts are underway to support all national efforts aiming at expediting the issuance of the second part of the Family Law pertaining to the Jaafari Section as an urgent and significant need demanded by the community.

15. The head of delegation pointed out that the Government strives to finalize the issuance of two laws that are still being discussed by the legislative authority namely, the Child Protection Law and the Law on the Protection of Victims of Family Violence.

16. With regard to labourers, the delegation informed that Bahrain has issued a series of new laws. The Ministry of Labour, in collaboration with the relevant authorities conducts periodical inspection tours to labourer accommodation and their work places in order to ensure availability of health and safety conditions, in addition to a special office made to receive and investigate labourer complaints and take necessary actions to redress the situation or retrieve the right of the worker. The revised new labour law which is expected to be issued very soon also includes a special chapter regulating issues pertaining to domestic servants.

17. The delegation stated that the general strategy has been adopted to upgrade security apparatus and personnel. Work is underway to revise the security procedures applicable to ensure maximum human rights. Further, Bahrain has retained international experts on security and human rights to achieve professional policing, with assurance of the Interior Ministry to commit to application of all the recommendations of the Bahrain Independent Commission of Inquiry.

18. On the events Bahrain underwent during last year in the months of February and March, the delegation conveyed that it enabled Bahrain to realize significant human rights reforms and achievements in favour of citizens. The delegation also stated that HM the King initiated number of drastic but gradual steps aimed at restoration of the situation in the aftermath of the events, beginning with conducting a National Consensus Dialogue including various components of the Bahraini community. A complete review was made through the dialogue sessions with respect to a series of important local issues and resulted in a number of demands for reforms in political, social, economical and human rights areas; most important of was the ratification of a number of constitutional amendments and modifications of a number of Bills.

19. The delegation briefed on the Bahrain Independent Commission of Inquiry (BICI) which was formed by a Royal initiative and which came up with a series of recommendations which have been accepted by Bahrain. Then a National Commission was formed presided by the Chairman of the National Assembly to follow up the implementations of BICI's recommendations in collaboration with all governmental and non-governmental bodies. A large part of BICI's recommendations have been completely implemented while others are currently being implemented.

20. On the issue of accountability the delegation informed that a number of officials who committed violations during the unrest events of 2011 have been referred for accountability, in the meantime 142 ongoing investigations resulted in 9 prosecutions so far. A special investigation unit in the Public Prosecution was established to investigate and consider reports and complaints of alleged torture, cruel and inhuman treatment. The Unit is supported by highly qualified investigators of human rights, forensic, and criminology experts. The unit operates in compliance with the international standards especially the Istanbul Protocol.

21. The delegation reminded again that trials of the aftermaths events were conducted before the civil courts in compliance with international standards. Each prosecuted person is allowed access to a lawyer. A lawyer is also appointed for each person accused in a criminal case who has no lawyer of his own. The court provides the accused person with all guarantees which enable him/her to defend himself/herself. All court trials are held in public.

22. The delegation explained that charges related to freedom of expression and opinion have been dropped as well as confessions related to the same charges. Procedures have also been adopted pertaining to cases against medical personnel, that more than 1185 out of 1416 cases have been dropped which have been referred from the national safety courts. In addition to the resolution passed by the Supreme Judiciary Council to form a judicial committee for revising all verdicts of convictions issued by the national safety courts, the committee ordered release of a number of convicted persons and the rest of verdicts are currently being revised by the fully-independent judicial authority.

23. The delegation informed of HM the King's call for the establishment of an Arab Human Rights Court to deal with all human rights-related cases. HM's call came from his firm belief of the political leadership of such court under the successive changes and events the Arab World was witnessing. Bahrain has also established a Special Compensation Fund for Victims and Relatives of Victims who were affected by the recent incidents.

24. The Government has recently endorsed in principle and taken constitutional and legal actions pertaining to joining the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance. The government of Bahrain also intends to finalize a Bill pertaining to creation of the National Human Rights Organization (NHRI), as a fully independent organization, in compliance with Paris Principles. The relevant bodies have been instructed to take the necessary legal and constitutional actions to refer the Bill to the legislative authority; both chambers of the legislative authority have endorsed number of crucial constitutional amendments approved by HM the King on 3.5.2012.

25. The delegation considered the constitutional amendments, which came as a result of the views of the National Consensus Dialogue, have rearranged the relationship between the executive authority and the legislative authority with full supervision powers to the council of representatives over the Shura Council. It reduced the role of the later and creates more balance between the two councils.

B. Interactive dialogue and responses by the State under review

26. During the interactive dialogue, 66 delegations made statements. Recommendations made during the dialogue are to be found in section II of the present report.

109. Singapore believed the establishment of the National Consensus Dialogue and the BICI as positive steps to restore social harmony and stability. Singapore noted efforts to promote human rights education and training and Bahrain's progress on gender equality and measures taken to empower women. Singapore made recommendations.

110. Slovakia commended Bahrain for being party to major human rights instruments and welcomed Bahrain's ratification of the CRPD. It expressed concern over the levels of force used by security personnel during and after the peaceful protests in February and March 2011. Slovakia made recommendations.

111. The delegation informed of a comprehensive law which will be promulgated that includes the written press, media as well as electronic-media. The upcoming press law will establish a higher council for the media, an independent council that will supervise of the content of the media and to make sure that there is no incitement to any kind of hatred or violence. In addition, Bahrain has started granting licences to foreign channels to broadcast. Bahrain allowed private TV channels to enter the country and did not close their websites. With regard to electronic sites, the government seeks to make sure that there is no incitement to hatred, violence or sectarianism in any media, including electronic media. Since 2002, no journalist has ever been detained.

112. The delegation stated that Bahrain is state of law, therefore the activity of the NGOs is regulated by the Ministry of Human Rights under the law 21 for the year 1989. In addition, the NGOs have their own approved article of associations, thus the Ministry cannot avert from the frame of the mechanisms and procedures which preserve the work of such organizations. The national center for organizations support provides such support which empowers the organizations' capabilities and enables them to operate institutionally. Additionally, there are a number of NGOs which have partnered in many projects and programs within the community partnership and financial grants program.

113. The delegation stated that there are places of worship in Bahrain for all faiths and anybody that comes to Bahrain will see this religions coexistence of which Bahrain is proud. Muslim places of worship amount to about 2339 places of worship. As to the issue of destruction of places of worship, the delegation informed that 5 have been reconstructed and the rest are being established currently, also a number are now being under review to allocate the necessary budget for the reconstruction of all places of worship that were destroyed during last year's unfortunate events.

114. The delegation thanked all the countries that intervened and presented comments and questions, and reaffirmed that Bahrain will deal constructively with all the recommendations that have been submitted and attaches high importance to the UPR process. The head of delegation reaffirmed Bahrain's commitment to the protection and promotion of human rights in collaboration with all human rights mechanisms and stake holders, in addition to human rights organizations and in partnership with civil society institutions.
