Introduction

1. The Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review (UPR), established in accordance with Human Rights Council resolution 5/1 of 18 June 2007, held its sixteenth session from 22 April to 3 May 2013. The review of Cameroon was held at the 15th meeting on 1 May 2013. The delegation of Cameroon was headed by H.E. Mr Pierre Moukoko Mbonjo, Minister of External Relations. At its 18th meeting held on 3 May 2013, the Working Group adopted the report on Cameroon.

1. On 14 January 2013, the Human Rights Council selected the following group of rapporteurs (troika) to facilitate the review of Cameroon: Italy, Kazakhstan and Kenya

2. In accordance with paragraph 15 of the annex to resolution 5/1 and paragraph 5 of the annex to resolution 16/21, the following documents were issued for the review of Cameroon:

(a) A national report submitted/written presentation made in accordance with paragraph 15 (a) (A/HRC/WG.6/16/CMR/1);

(b) A compilation prepared by OHCHR in accordance with paragraph 15 (b) (A/HRC/WG.6/16/CMR/2);

(c) A summary prepared by OHCHR in accordance with paragraph 15 (c) (A/HRC/WG.6/16/CMR/3).

3. A list of questions prepared in advance by the Czech Republic, Mexico, Montenegro, the Netherlands, Slovenia, Spain and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland was transmitted to Cameroon through the troika. These questions are available on the extranet of the UPR.

I. Summary of the proceedings of the review process

A. Presentation by the State under review

5. La délégation a expliqué que le rapport national, qui avait été préparé par un comité interministériel placé sous la supervision des services du Premier Ministre, avait été soumis à une série d'examens, d'abord par l'ensemble des départements ministériels concernés par les droits de l'homme; ensuite par les organisations de la société civile et enfin au cours d'un atelier conjoint Gouvernement/société civile.

6. La délégation a souligné qu'il y avait eu des avancées en matière de droits de l'homme depuis février 2009 et que celles-ci se déclinaient en termes de renforcement des axes stratégiques, d'amélioration du cadre normatif et institutionnel et de mise en œuvre d'actions concrètes.

7. C'est ainsi qu'au niveau stratégique, le Cameroun, en 2010, s'est doté d'un Document de Stratégie pour la Croissance et l'Emploi (DSCE) et a également initié un processus d'adoption d'un plan d'action national de promotion et de protection des droits de l'homme.

8. En ce qui concerne le cadre normatif et institutionnel, la délégation a relevé que le Cameroun avait ratifié huit Conventions internationales relevant du droit international des droits de l'homme et du droit international humanitaire. Deux de ces instruments ont fait l'objet de recommandations acceptées au cours de l'EPU de 2009. Il s'agit du Protocole facultatif à la Convention relative aux droits de l'enfant concernant l'implication d'enfants dans les conflits armés et du Protocole facultatif se rapportant à la Convention des Nations Unies contre la torture et autres peines ou traitements cruels, inhumains ou dégradants. Des instruments régionaux africains ont également fait l'objet de ratification entre 2009 et 2012.

9. S'agissant des actions concrètes prises pendant la période sous revue, la délégation a déclaré que des actions majeures ont été entreprises pour améliorer la situation générale des droits de l'homme. Ainsi, l'accès à une alimentation de qualité à moindre coût est demeuré une préoccupation constante et des mesures ont été prises pour lutter contre la vie chère et promouvoir la qualité des produits destinés à la consommation.

10. Concernant le droit au travail et l'accès à l'emploi, la délégation a noté que le Cameroun avait initié, en février 2011, un vaste programme de recrutement de 25.000 jeunes dans la fonction publique. Elle a également souligné que l'attrait que constituait le Cameroun pour les investisseurs étrangers, la réalisation des grands chantiers de l'Etat laissaient entrevoir de bonnes perspectives quant à la garantie du droit au travail aux Camerounais.

11. Quant aux personnes handicapées, la délégation a mentionné les mesures prises pour favoriser notamment leur accès à l'éducation telles que l'exemption totale ou partielle des frais scolaires et universitaires. Elle a également détaillé plusieurs réalisations faites en matière de garantie des droits des personnes vivant avec un handicap.

12. Pour ce qui est du droit de participation à la gestion des affaires publiques, la délégation a noté qu'Electons Cameroun (ELECAM), organe créé en 2009 pour superviser les élections avait, depuis 2010, mener ses activités de manière satisfaisante. ELECAM a ainsi organisé les récentes et premières élections sénatoriales du pays tenues le 14 avril 2013 ainsi que les élections présidentielles d'octobre 2011. La délégation a mentionné diverses mesures qui avaient contribué à la réussite de ces élections telles la gratuité de l'établissement de la carte nationale d'identité et le fonctionnement effectif de l'ensemble des démembrements régionaux et départementaux. L'adoption d'un Code électoral unique ainsi que le processus de refonte biométrique des listes électorales renforcent la transparence des élections et la consolidation de la confiance en celles-ci.

13. The delegation emphasised that most of the accepted recommendations had been implemented satisfactorily.

14. With regard to recommendations on women's rights, the Government intensified capacity-building actions for the prevention and management of gender-based violence, adopted the National Strategy against such forms of violence and implemented a programme to combat various forms of violence against women.

15. The delegation stated that the respect of freedom of expression had been manifested through, inter alia, better freedom of the press, set-up of the National Communication Council and organisation of training for journalists on the respect of professional norms and ethics. It highlighted that the status of journalist or human right defenders was not tantamount to exemption from being prosecuted for common law crimes.

16. Regarding the relations related to education, the delegation mentioned, among others, the opening of eighth universities, teaching of national languages and cultures and boosting of the teaching of human rights in schools.

17. Concerning the fight against corruption, the delegation stated that Cameroon had stepped up its efforts through, among others, the development of the National Strategy against Corruption and the creation of the Special Criminal Court and a Ministry in charge of Public Contracts.

18. In terms of public health, the delegation noted the decline of the HIV/AIDS prevalence, stabilisation of the budget of the Ministry of Health and significant decline in the mortality rate of children below five years.
19. With regard to the recommendation to strengthen the National Commission for Human Rights and Freedoms (NCHRF), the delegations said that its implementation had been translated concretely in the increase of its budget and its compliance with the Paris Principles.
20. The delegation also underlined Cameroon's fruitful international cooperation in the area of human rights and its compliance with its obligation of submitting reports.
21. Furthermore, Cameroon received in 2011 and 2012 several regional and international mandate holders, such as the Special Rapporteur on Human Rights Defenders in Africa and the UN Special Rapporteur on the Right to Food. In addition to the expected visit of the Special Rapporteur on the Freedom of Expression, three other invitations had been sent to the UN Special Procedures.
22. The delegation noted with satisfaction the protection of children's rights and the carrying out of a national on-going study on the identification of indigenous people.
23. However, the implementation of some recommendations still remained causes for concern for Cameroon.
24. In that regard, the delegation mentioned the compliance of places of detention with international standards. Even though some progresses have been made, efforts still needed to be carried out to improve food for prisoners, enhance sanitation in prisons, build new prisons and modernise existing ones. The continuation of the implementation of the Programme for Improving the Conditions of Detention (PACDET) with the collaboration of the European Union is expected to overcome some of these challenges.
25. The delegation was also concerned at the adherence to international conventions and noted that out of the seven international instruments whose ratification had been accepted, two had been actually ratified (OP-CAT and OP-CRC-CAC).
26. Regarding decent housing facilities, the delegation stated that the 2010-2013 programme for the building of 10.000 low-cost houses and the development of 50.000 building plots was underway although it had met some delays.
27. The delegation underlined that the unsatisfactory implementation of some recommendations was not the result of bad faith from the Government but was due to limited resources; time necessary for the changes of attitude from the population and administrative work-related issues.
28. The delegation listed various challenges that Cameroon had been facing such as, among others, the fight against impunity; problems linked to the capacity-building of State and civil society's stakeholders and education and awareness on human rights issues. It added to these challenges, the inadequate means for economic, social and cultural rights; formal mechanism for monitoring and evaluating public policy and the collection and dissemination of statistics on human rights.
29. The delegation reiterated Cameroon's commitment to continue implementing the recommendations accepted in 2009 and those to be agreed upon at the end of this review. Cameroon will develop an action plan and a roadmap for the implementation of these recommendations, the consultation of governmental and civil society's stakeholders and continue its cooperation with the sub-regional Centre of the UN for Human Rights and Democracy in Central Africa.

30. Regarding the advance questions made by the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and Slovenia on violence and discrimination against women, the delegation replied that actual revision of the Penal Code would allow eventually repressing all forms of violence against women. Sexual assaults are the most common violence against women and perpetrators are systematically prosecuted and sentenced in most cases. The Government has developed a national strategy to fight against sexual violence around several axes such as prevention; legal and psychosocial counselling of victims; research and fight against specific violence.

31. With regard to female genital mutilation (FGM), the delegation noticed that the phenomenon was restricted to the far north, north and south west parts of the country and to a few sites in Yaoundé. In total, it stated that 1, 4 per cent of the population are mutilated in Cameroon. It listed several actions carried out to fight against FGM, such as micro projects to allow persons who practice FGM to develop income generating activities and organisation of an annual campaign called “Zero tolerance to FGM”.

B. Interactive dialogue and responses by the State under review

32. During the interactive dialogue, 82 delegations made statements. Recommendations made during the dialogue are to be found in section II of the present report.

33. Slovakia acknowledged the ratification of OP-CRC-AC. It commended the upgraded accreditation of the National Commission on Human Rights and Freedoms in accordance with the Paris Principles. It made recommendations.

34. Slovenia commended the ratification of OP-CRC-AC. It encouraged further strengthening Cameroon’s efforts towards the elimination of FGM. It praised Cameroon for its endeavours to eliminate and prevent children trafficking but it was concerned about abuse of children. Slovenia made recommendations.

35. South Africa commended several treaties’ ratification and measures to protect women’s rights, particularly FGM. It noted steps towards the IMCI implementation and encouraged to equally heighten Cameroon’s efforts to reduce maternal mortality and to ensure women’s access to reproductive health services. It made a recommendation.

36. Spain noted Cameroon’s legislative reforms, including measures to protect and promote the rights of persons with disabilities, fight against trafficking in persons and the government’s reorganization for better compliance with its commitment on human rights. It made recommendations.

37. The Sudan welcomed the active engagement in the UPR process. It commended the efforts taken in the implementation of the recommendations including the review of policies and the legislation in Cameroon and commended the adoption of the National Plan of Action. It made a recommendation.

38. Thailand commended measures to strengthen the judiciary independence; combat poverty and trafficking in persons; and protect vulnerable groups. It was concerned about women’s violence. Thailand engaged with Cameroon for training on the Bangkok Rules and the Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners. It made recommendations.

39. Togo welcomed the Inter-ministerial Committee to monitor the implementation of international and regional human rights mechanisms’ recommendations; the National Action Plan on Human Rights (PANPPDH); and the ratification of several treaties. It made recommendations.

40. Tunisia noted several legal, political and institutional progresses. It encouraged Cameroon to further eliminate women's violence and eradicate corporal punishment of children. It called upon the High Commissioner and the international community to meet Cameroon's expectations regarding technical assistance. It made recommendations.
41. Uganda highlighted the Inter-ministerial Committee to monitor the implementation of international and human rights mechanisms' recommendations; the National Human Rights Education Programme; and the National Action Plan. It called upon the international community to provide Cameroon with assistance. It made a recommendation.
42. The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland urged Cameroon to speak out against threats towards human rights defenders and LGBT community; and decriminalize same sex acts between consenting adults. It expressed concern about women's violence; poor access to information and free press; and journalists' bans. It made recommendations.
43. The United States of America looked forward to further efforts to strengthen the rule of law and end impunity regarding human rights violations committed by security forces and public officials. It was concerned about prisons' conditions and overcrowding; freedom of assembly, association and expression; and LGBT people. It made recommendations.
44. Uruguay commended Cameroon's recent ratifications and the laws to strengthen the independence of the National Commission of Human Rights and Freedoms. It made recommendations.
45. Uzbekistan welcomed reforms to strengthen Cameroon's human rights protection system, particularly the Employment Strategy; the National Human Rights Plan of Action; and the reorganization of the National Commission of Human Rights and Freedoms. It noted the ratification of OP-CAT, OP-CRC-AC and several ILO Conventions. It made recommendations.
46. Venezuela (Bolivarian Republic of) noted Cameroon's investments in livestock and fish production to guarantee food availability. It highlighted its strides towards universal and free education and measures to improve the situation of persons with disabilities. It made a recommendation.
47. Viet Nam commended the ratification of several regional and international human rights instruments; the improvement of the standard of living; and the 2012 National Plan of Action for Human Rights. It made a recommendation.
48. Zimbabwe noted the National Plan of Action for Human Rights Protection. It highlighted activities carried out by the National Commission on Human Rights and Freedoms and civil society organizations. It made recommendations.
49. Afghanistan recognized steps to promote and protect human rights, including the rights of persons with disabilities, right to work, to food and access to employment. It commended Cameroon's ratification of international instruments and the Growth and Employment Strategy. Afghanistan made recommendations.
50. Algeria commended the National Plan of Action to Promote and Protect Human Rights; the Five Year Protection Plan against FGM; the National Human Rights Education Program; measures to improve socio-economic rights; the Inter-Ministerial Committee; and the law for persons with disabilities. It made recommendations.
51. Angola commended the National Plan of Action to Promote and Protect Human Rights. It noted efforts to combat corruption; the ratification of OP-CAT and OP-CRC-AC, among others; and the establishment of several institutions, such as the Inter-Ministerial Committee. Angola made a recommendation.

52. Argentina commended the Inter-ministerial Committee of Prevention and Fight against Trafficking in Persons and the Inter-ministerial Committee to monitor the implementation of international and regional human rights mechanisms' recommendations. Argentina made recommendations.

53. Armenia acknowledged the National Action Plan on Human Rights Promotion and Protection and the ratification of human rights treaties. It noted the priority to education and the invitation to the Independent Expert on minority issues. It made recommendations.

54. Australia welcomed the supplementary legislation on the functioning of the National Commission on Human Rights and Freedoms. It was concerned about prosecution of homosexuality. It called on Cameroon to implement the human rights conventions. It made recommendations.

55. Bangladesh noted the positive actions taken to ensure the right to food, work and employment, health, education and rights of persons with disabilities.

56. Belgium welcomed the greater independence of the National Commission of Human Rights and Freedoms as well as the setting up of a national human rights education programmed. It made recommendations.

57. Répondant aux questions concernant l'homosexualité, la délégation du Cameroun a noté que la société camerounaise n'acceptait pas encore l'homosexualité comme un comportement normal et qu'il fallait lui laisser le temps d'évoluer. La délégation a souligné que les homosexuels n'étaient pas pourchassés et que les quelques cas qui avaient été portés à l'attention de la communauté internationale avaient été des cas constatés dans les lieux publics. Il faut donc relativiser ce phénomène qui en terme quantitatif est négligeable. Par ailleurs, le droit international prévoit qu'un Etat puisse restreindre une liberté «afin de satisfaire aux justes exigences de la morale, de l'ordre public et du bien-être général dans une société démocratique».

58. En ce qui concerne la peine de mort, la délégation a noté qu'une seule exécution avait été conduite depuis l'accession au pouvoir du Président Paul Biya. La loi est l'expression de la volonté générale et le Gouvernement doit tenir compte, quelque soient ses convictions, de son électorat. La peine de mort n'est pas appliquée de facto et son abolition arrivera un jour mais il convient de tenir compte de l'évolution de la société.

59. S'agissant des journalistes et des défenseurs des droits de l'homme, la délégation a relevé qu'il existait au Cameroun une soixantaine de radios, une vingtaine de chaînes de télévision, où le débat était libre, et une centaine de journaux privés. Elle a déclaré qu'aucun journaliste n'était en prison du fait de l'exercice de son métier et qu'aucun journaliste sorti d'une école de journalisme ne connaissait de problèmes. Le gouvernement ne poursuit pas les journalistes, ce sont des particuliers qui le font pour diffamation ou propagation de fausses nouvelles et lorsque l'on parle de dépénalisation des délits de presse, il ne s'agit pas de délits de presse mais de diffamation.

60. La délégation a également noté que le Gouvernement n'acceptait pas que des menaces soient adressées à l'encontre des défenseurs des droits de l'homme et que des enquêtes étaient menées si cela arrivait.

61. En ce qui concerne le droit d'association, la délégation a noté qu'il existait des dispositions qui permettaient à chacun de s'exprimer et de s'organiser librement ainsi que de manifester. Il convenait cependant de souligner que le Gouvernement interdisait une manifestation lorsqu'il y avait des informations sur le fait qu'elle pouvait entraîner des violences, mais cela ne voulait pas dire que le droit d'association était remis en cause.

62. Benin noted the government's commitment to tackle poverty through the adoption of a Growth and Employment Strategy Paper to ensure food security and jobs creation in rural areas. It encouraged Cameroon to pursue its efforts to ensure suitable housing for each citizen and eradicate FGM.

63. Botswana expressed appreciation for the adoption of the Growth and Employment Strategy Paper in 2010 and the validation of the National Plan of Action for Human Rights in 2012. It made recommendations.

64. Brazil acknowledged an improved access to education, targeted programmes for several aspects of women's rights, in particular related to FGM. It made recommendations.

65. Bulgaria welcomed the validation of the National Plan of Action for Promotion and Protection of Human Rights. It noted the Government's substantial awareness-raising and action-oriented measures to promote and protect women's rights. It made a recommendation.

66. Burkina Faso encouraged Cameroon to continue adopting measures to improve the administration of justice, to go on with the guarantee of care services, particularly regarding maternal and child health, adopting the five-year action plan against FGM, guarantee the rights of persons with disabilities, and request support from the relevant UN agencies.

67. Burundi commended Cameroon for its National Commission for Human Rights and Freedoms and the programme to create jobs. It welcomed the on-going training provided to police staff, gendarmerie, penitentiary administration, army and courts. It made recommendations.

68. Cambodia welcomed the ratification of OP-CAT and the OP-CRC-AC. It noted the creation of the National Action Plan for Promotion and Protection of Human Rights and the national plan of action to combat trafficking and sexual exploitation of children. Cambodia made recommendations.

69. Canada recalled that in 2009, it recommended Cameroon to abolish the privative penalty for press offences and that Cameroon had accepted it. Canada requested what measures had been taken in this regard and when Cameroon was expected to abolish this penalty. It made recommendations.

70. Cape Verde highlighted the National Human Rights Education Programme, a Platform including a programme of Fight Against Violence Towards Women, creation of an inter-ministerial committee of Prevention and Fight against Trafficking in Persons and a law on the protection of persons with disabilities. It made recommendations.

71. Chad noted that Cameroon strengthened its human rights framework by validating the National Plan of Action for Promotion and Protection of Human Rights and elaborating the Strategy Document for Growth and Employment. It encouraged Cameroon to pursue its initiated efforts and asked for the support of partners to join Cameroon in the implementation of recommendations.

72. Chile valued the ratification of OP-CAT, among others. It congratulated Cameroon for giving priority for full and universal education. Chile appreciated measures to eradicate FGM and to strengthen press freedom. It made recommendations.

73. China noted Cameroon's validation of the National Plan of Action on Human Rights and its combat to fight corruption. It noted the government's efforts to ensure food security and to provide medical care and special benefits to persons with disabilities. It highlighted the increase of education facilities. It made recommendations.

74. Comoros underlined the country's efforts to guarantee human rights and in particular children and women's rights. It made a recommendation.

75. The Democratic Republic of the Congo noted the creation of the inter-ministerial committee on monitoring implementation of recommendations of the international and regional human rights mechanisms, the validation of the National Plan of Action for Promotion and Protection of Human Rights. It highlighted the ratification of the OP-CRC-AC and OP-CAT.

76. Costa Rica acknowledged the National Commission of Human Rights and Freedoms' strengthening and the National Action Plan to Promote and Protect Human Rights. It expressed concern about torture and ill treatment by prison officials in detention places. It made recommendations.

77. Cote d'Ivoire commended the country's accession to OP-CAT and to OP-CRC-AC. It expressed appreciation for steps taken in favour of children's rights and education for all. It encouraged Cameroon to pursue its efforts to effectively implement the 1st cycle UPR recommendations. It made recommendations.

78. Cuba acknowledged Cameroon's respect of equality, social harmony, tolerance and non-discrimination and the guarantee of the rights of children, women, minorities, people with disabilities and vulnerable groups. It recognized progress in the education and health fields. Cuba made a recommendation.

79. Cyprus acknowledged that Cameroon's National Commission for Human Rights and Freedoms visits detention centres. It welcomed its OP-CAT ratification, but was concerned about reports of continued FGM, stressing that high-level political commitment must complement community-based solutions to end this practice. It made a recommendation.

80. The Czech Republic welcomed Cameroon's ratification of OP-CRC-AC and OP-CAT, and encouraged it to continue in its efforts to promote and protect human rights. It made recommendations.

81. The Democratic Republic of the Congo recognised Cameroon's progress, including ratification of international instruments, adoption of a National Action Plan for the promotion and protection of human rights, enhancement of the rights of vulnerable groups and a dedicated National Education Programme. It made recommendations.

82. Djibouti noted Cameroon's progress in strengthening its normative provisions, ratifying OP-CAT and the main international treaties promoting and protecting human rights, reflecting its diligence in cooperating with the human rights system. It made recommendations.

83. Egypt welcomed the establishment of an Inter-ministerial Committee for monitoring implementation of UPR recommendations and/or decisions from regional and international human rights mechanisms and the Committee on the prevention and fight against trafficking in persons. It welcomed the process aimed at integrating human rights into policies and programmes. It made recommendations.

84. Estonia noted Cameroon's adoption of a National Action Plan, its National Education Programme on human rights, its support for UNSCR 1325 principles and resolutions concerning women, peace and security, and its action against gender-based discrimination and FMG, which it urged it to criminalise. It made recommendations.

85. Ethiopia appreciated the Cameroonian Government's legislative and policy measures to strengthen its human rights mechanisms. It asked Cameroon to detail the measures taken to fight inequality between men and women, improve living conditions and combat harmful traditional practices. It made recommendations.

86. France welcomed Cameroon Government's ratification of OP-CRC-AC and its joint monitoring, with civil society, of implementation of UPR 1st cycle recommendations. It made recommendations.

87. S'agissant de la ratification de certains instruments internationaux dont le Cameroun n'est pas encore partie, la délégation a relevé que la signature et la ratification de toutes les conventions internationales en matière des droits de l'homme étaient un engagement constitutionnel depuis 1996. Elle a rappelé que le fait que certaines n'avaient pas encore été signées et/ou ratifiées était le résultat de procédures internes et législatives et pas d'une quelconque réticence de la part du Gouvernement. En ce qui concerne le Statut de Rome, la délégation a noté que le Cameroun l'avait signé et qu'il coopérait de manière « exemplaire » avec la CPI.

88. Concernant l'invitation permanente aux titulaires de mandat, la délégation a rappelé que chaque année le Cameroun recevait des Rapporteurs spéciaux du Conseil des Droits de l'Homme et de la Commission africaine des Droits de l'Homme et des Peuples et qu'ils étaient tous les bienvenus. Toutefois, le Gouvernement s'étonnait parfois du fait qu'il envoyait des invitations qui n'étaient pas suivies d'effets. La délégation a mentionné qu'il y a un an, le Cameroun a renouvelé son invitation à la Haut-Commissaire aux Droits de l'Homme pour visiter le pays.

89. La délégation a également souligné qu'elle partageait les préoccupations évoquées par les orateurs concernant les droits des femmes. Elle a cependant commencé par déclarer que le Cameroun était le pays de l'égalité salariale entre hommes et femmes et que les femmes étaient majoritaires dans les universités et les grandes écoles. Les femmes étaient également présentes dans tous les secteurs de l'Etat et, durant les dernières élections sénatoriales, les partis politiques avaient imposé 30 pour cent de femmes sur leurs listes. Malgré ces progrès, la délégation a reconnu que les mutilations génitales féminines étaient un drame humain inacceptable, que les MGF procédaient de deux phénomènes, culturel et économique, et qu'il convenait à la fois de faire un travail de sensibilisation pour mettre fin à ces pratiques et de permettre aux exciseuses de se reconvertir.

90. Quant au travail des enfants, la délégation a déclaré que des efforts étaient faits pour limiter le travail clandestin dans les plantations de coton.

91. Par rapport à la question de la détention, la délégation a redit que les standards pratiqués dans les prisons n'étaient pas toujours conformes aux standards internationaux mais que des efforts étaient faits pour améliorer les conditions de détention, malgré un budget limité.

92. Gabon welcomed Cameroon's cooperation with international mechanisms for the promotion and protection of human rights, in particular its ratification of multiple texts at international and regional levels. It commended it for its work favouring certain human rights categories, for establishing several dedicated national institutions and for strengthening the rule of law and good governance through policies and action plans designed to guarantee individual rights and public freedoms.

93. Germany recognised the Cameroonian Government's constant efforts to strengthen human rights and commended it for ratifying OP-CRC-AC. It made recommendations.

94. Ghana welcomed the establishment of an inter-ministerial implementation monitoring body, and its ratification of several international and regional human rights and humanitarian legal instruments. It recognised its measures to eradicate harmful traditional practices and FGM. However, it shared CEDAW concerns regarding stereotypes of women's roles and responsibilities, and discrimination in land ownership. It called on the international community to support with capacity building and technical assistance.

95. Guatemala noted Cameroon's progress in human rights, demonstrated by ratifying OP-CAT, establishing a multi-level National Human Rights Education Programme and enacting a law on the protection and well-being of persons with disabilities. It made recommendations.

96. Haiti commended Cameroon's contribution to the work of the Human Rights Council through the presentation of its UPR 2nd cycle national report. It made recommendations.

97. Hungary acknowledged Cameroon's ratification of OP-CAT and ILO Conventions 144 and 155, and its A-status accreditation. It shared the concerns of various Special Rapporteurs on the safety of human rights defenders and journalists. It welcomed its 5-year action plan to combat FGM and commended the efforts to eradicate harmful practices. It made recommendations.

98. Indonesia welcomed Cameroon's adoption of a National Action Plan for promoting and protecting human rights, its National Gender Policy, its 5-year action plan for combatting FGM and its legislation protecting persons with disabilities. It welcomed the establishment of the inter-ministerial committee for monitoring implementation of recommendations of international and regional mechanisms. It commended the actions in education and children's rights. It made recommendations.

99. Ireland welcomed Cameroon's efforts to improve detention conditions, despite concerns raised by CAT and encouraged it to repeal the decree on prison disciplinary measures. It recognised its efforts to eradicate FGM and the updates made to the five years action plan for the fight against FGM, but noted the continued concerns on this issue. It made recommendations.

100. Italy commended Cameroon for measures to combat FGM, including its awareness-raising campaigns. It asked what steps it envisaged for combatting FGM and other harmful practices. It noted the existence of a de facto moratorium on the death penalty and encouraged Cameroon to formalise this with a view to abolition. It requested further details on how it intended to prevent abuse of detainees or arrested persons and whether, and how, human rights training of law enforcement officials was conducted.

101. Kyrgyzstan noted the continued cooperation with OHCHR, Treaty Bodies and Special Procedures and welcomed the implementation of the Integrated Management of Child Illnesses Strategy and its measures to prevent; treat and care for persons with HIV. It considered that planning and budgeting measures were required in view of inadequacies in allocating and distributing public funding. It made recommendations.

102. Madagascar specifically noted Cameroon's progress in strengthening its legal and institutional frameworks to promote and protect human rights. It congratulated it for adopting legislation to strengthen independence of the National Commission on Human Rights and Freedoms and establishing an Inter-ministerial Committee to monitor the fight against trafficking in persons.

103. Malaysia welcomed Cameroon's progress in combatting violence against women, children's rights and poverty in response to UPR 1st cycle recommendations, as well as in education, health, rights to food and of disabled persons. It commended it for adopting its Growth and Employment Strategy Paper. It appreciated the sincerity in highlighting the challenges it faces. It made recommendations.

104. Mali commended the Cameroonian Government for its work to strengthen capacity of the National Commission for Human Rights and Freedoms. It welcomed adoption of a national plan for the promotion and protection of human rights and noted Cameroon's legislative and administrative measures for the human rights training of judicial, law enforcement and military personnel.

105. Mauritania considered that Cameroon's National report highlighted its progress through validation of its National Action Plan for the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights and adoption of its Strategy Document for Growth and Employment. It noted Cameroon accession to all relevant African instruments and its OP-CAT ratification. It acknowledged that Cameroonian media have contributed to information and public awareness campaigns specific to education, health, women and children.

106. Mexico highlighted Cameroon's ratification of OP-CAT and ICRMW, encouraging continuing this process. It recognised legal initiatives to strengthen independence of the National Commission of Human Rights and Freedoms. It welcomed efforts for persons with disabilities' welfare, and to combat violence and discrimination against women. It made recommendations.

107. Montenegro welcomed Cameroon's signing of ICC's Rome Statute and OP-CAT and encouraged the completion of the process required to ratify these instruments. It commended it for combatting FGM, and joined CEDAW and CAT in urging it to pass relevant legislations in this regard. It was concerned about prosecution and discrimination based on homosexual behaviour and urged to reinforce efforts to ensure safety of all HRDs. It made recommendations.

108. Morocco noted Cameroon's initiative to strengthen its normative and institutional framework in relation to human rights. It commended Cameroon for its interest in protecting all vulnerable categories, in particular persons with disabilities. It congratulated it for its praiseworthy efforts to fight corruption through establishment of an important national system.

109. Myanmar expressed its appreciation of Cameroon's comprehensive national report, prepared through a broad-based consultation process. It noted its adoption of a national human rights education programme. It made a recommendation.

110. The Netherlands noted Cameroon's work to promote women's rights and combat violence and discrimination in all forms. It was alarmed about the situation of LGBT rights and the harsh prosecutions in cases of consensual relations between persons of the same sex. It made recommendations.

111. Nicaragua noted Cameroon's work on human rights such as health, education, housing and the right to food; the strategy on development and employment to guarantee food security; and the 2012 visit of the Special Rapporteur on Food. It commended efforts to ensure universal and free education. It made a recommendation.

112. The Niger noted the participatory approach in preparing the report and noted with satisfaction Cameroon's endeavours to ratify most regional and international human rights instruments and its progress made in relation to UPR 1st cycle recommendations. It made recommendations.

113. Nigeria commended the Cameroonian authorities for their effort in preparing the National Report and progress in promoting and protecting human rights in the country. It made recommendations.

114. Oman noted that Cameroon's National Report clarified measures taken by the Government to promote and protect human rights as evidenced by its ratification of multiple international conventions and adoption of a National Plan of Action for the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights. It made recommendations.

115. The Philippines commended Cameroon for striving to meet its accepted recommendations despite the financial and other constraints. It commended Cameroon for taking measures to enhance human rights through legal and administrative reforms, greater judicial independence, protection of women's and children's rights and implementation of programmes addressing the right to health care. It made recommendations.

116. Poland appreciated laws to strengthen NHRC compliance with Paris Principles while remained concerned about the situation of women and children in Cameroon. CEDAW has noted high rates of violence, harmful traditional practices and lack of sufficient legal protection for women. It also noted serious problems involving exploitation, trafficking and violence involving children. It made recommendations.

117. The Republic of Moldova welcomed Cameroon's adoption of measures to prevent and eliminate violence to women, strengthening of Cameroonian legislation in the area of children's rights and efforts to improve birth registration. It made recommendations.

118. The Democratic People's Republic of Korea noted Cameroon's ratification of several international instruments, including OP-CAT and OP-CRC-AC. It commended its efforts made to protect the rights of human rights defenders and persons with disabilities. It took note of the concerns expressed by the Human rights Committee and CAT. It made recommendations.

119. The Russian Federation noted Cameroon's measures to ensure the rule of law, guarantee individual rights and freedoms, and combat corruption. It asked of the reasons why it experienced on-going difficulties in responding to requests from Human Rights Council Special Procedures within the established time frame. It made a recommendation.

120. Rwanda specifically noted Cameroon's adoption of the Growth and Employment Strategy for strengthening the rule of the law and achieving Millennium Development Goals. It commended its measures to improve the judicial system, promote women's rights and fight against violence and discrimination. It made recommendations.

121. Saudi Arabia noted Cameroon's implementation of its commitments arising from conventions it ratified and of its voluntary commitments within the framework of the human rights system. It noted the adoption of some strategies and implementing policies in the area of food security that contributed to progress the supply of food and access to it. It made recommendations.

122. Senegal welcomed Cameroon's strengthening of institutional and legal frameworks, improving education and health services, and promoting different social categories, especially women and children. Its work to eradicate FGM was noteworthy, in particular the retraining of former FGM practitioners. It made recommendations.

123. Sierra Leone acknowledged Cameroon's ratification of regional and international conventions, including OP-CAT and OP-CRC-AC and its Action Plan for human rights promotion and protection. It took note of the steps taken to ensure the independence of its NHRC. It noted its actions leading to improvements in agriculture, education, health and housing, and human rights awareness raising. It made recommendations.

124. Singapore welcomed Cameroon's efforts to improve access to education and resulting greater enrolment. It noted its success in implementing the National Strategic Plan for the fight against HIV/AIDS and STIs and its resulting reduction in HIV prevalence. It made recommendations.

125. Concernant la demande de la Russie relative aux difficultés rencontrées par le Cameroun à apporter des réponses aux questions posées par les titulaires de mandat, la délégation a déclaré que cela était dû aux délais de collecte des informations et de concertation entre les différentes structures concernées.

126. La délégation a expliqué que, depuis 1986, il a fallu former en droits de l'homme les forces de maintien de l'ordre, transformer leur mentalité et introduire des cours dans toutes les écoles où elles étaient entraînées.

127. La délégation a réitéré l'engagement du Cameroun en matière des droits de l'homme et confirmé que les recommandations qui ont été faites seraient prises en compte et qu'une large consultation de tous les secteurs serait menée pour donner, avant le mois de septembre, des réponses claires sur ce qui a été accepté et pour mener à leur terme tous les engagements pris.

128. La délégation a une nouvelle fois souligné qu'aucun journaliste de métier n'avait la moindre difficulté à travailler au Cameroun et qu'un organe de régulation, le Conseil national de communication, avait été mis en place.

129. De même pour le débat sur l'homosexualité, la délégation a rappelé que toute société évoluait, qu'il fallait laisser le Cameroun poursuivre son chemin et laisser le travail de maturation des mentalités se faire.

130. La délégation a terminé en lançant un appel à la communauté internationale afin qu'elle apporte son soutien aux efforts menés par le Cameroun. En effet le pays redémarre, des grands chantiers économiques sont lancés mais les moyens budgétaires sont limités et il a besoin de l'appui de la communauté internationale pour réussir à faire du Cameroun un grand pays des droits de l'homme.
