Introduction

1. The Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review (UPR), established in accordance with Human Rights Council resolution 5/1 of 18 June 2007, held its fourteenth session from 22 October to 5 November 2012. The review of Ukraine was held at the 5th meeting on 24 October 2012. The delegation of Ukraine was headed by Mr. Nazar Kulchytskyy, the Government Agent before the European Court of Human Rights, the Ministry of Justice. At its 9th meeting held on 29 October 2012, the Working Group adopted the report on Ukraine.
2. On 3 May 2012, the Human Rights Council selected the following group of rapporteurs (troika) to facilitate the review of Ukraine: Cameroon, Saudi Arabia and Ecuador.
3. In accordance with paragraph 15 of the annex to resolution 5/1, the following documents were issued for the review of Ukraine:
  - (a) A national report submitted/written presentation made in accordance with paragraph 15 (a) (A/HRC/WG.6/14/UKR/1);
  - (b) A compilation prepared by OHCHR in accordance with paragraph 15 (b) (A/HRC/WG.6/14/UKR/2);
  - (c) A summary prepared by OHCHR in accordance with paragraph 15 (c) (A/HRC/WG.6/14/UKR/3) and (A/HRC/WG.6/14/UKR/3.corr1).
4. A list of questions prepared in advance by Czech Republic, Denmark, Hungary, The Netherlands, Norway, Mexico, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland was transmitted to Ukraine through the troika. These questions are available on the extranet of the UPR.

I. Summary of the proceedings of the review process

A. Presentation by the State under review

5. The delegation stated that the national report was drafted in the spirit of openness and through public discussions and that it reflected the actions taken for the implementation of the recommendations of the first cycle of the UPR and progress documented in this respect. Among various steps taken to ensure the human rights protection, the delegation highlighted the judicial reform, and the adoption of new antidiscrimination legislation and comprehensive criminal procedure. All reforms had a common goal of promoting the principle of the rule of law and enhancing the guarantees of the human rights protection.
6. The delegation reported about the launch of criminal justice reform. In the framework of this reform, the new Code of Criminal Procedure and the Law on Bar and the Bar Associations were adopted and the adoption of draft Law on the Prosecutor's Office and reform of the judiciary have been in process.
7. The delegation explained that the new Criminal Procedure Code prescribed bail and home arrest as the main preventive measures and detention as an extraordinary preventive measure. While examining requests on detention, the courts should verify existence of well-founded reasons for detention and while reviewing such preventive measures the court should evaluate persistence of risks, which became the ground for detention and measures taken by the law-enforcement authorities to eliminate such risks. Thus, the above mentioned requirements were expected to resolve the problem of unreasoned and extensive detentions and of overcrowding of the pre-trial detention facilities.

8. As to the guarantees of a fair trial, the new Code regulated effectively the procedure of obtaining evidences by the parties in proceedings. Furthermore, the institution of investigative judge was introduced to exercise judicial control over pre-trial investigation.

9. The delegation stated that according to the new Code evidences, should be considered inadmissible, if they were obtained, inter alia, as a result of torture, cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or threats of such treatment and with the violation of the person's right to defense. The provisions on admissibility of evidences were considered important since in most cases the law-enforcement authorities violated human rights in order to obtain evidence that, subsequently, were used during proceedings.

10. The delegation stated that the new Code came also to resolve the problem of an ineffective investigation of complaints on ill-treatment and deprivation of life. According to the Council of Europe's European Court of Human Rights the main reason of ineffective investigation was conflict of interests since the Prosecutor's Office served as investigative, controlling and prosecuting body. Under the new Code, Prosecutor's Office could be investigative body only in cases concerning judges, high-ranking officials and law-enforcement officers. In addition, law-enforcement bodies were obliged to register a case and to start investigation from the moment of receiving a complaint. The delegation expressed its belief that those provisions would eliminate a conflict of interests and increase effectiveness of the investigation under the complaints on ill-treatment and deprivation of life.

11. The delegation reported about judicial reform, which was launched by the adoption of the Law on the Judicial System and Status of Judges. Subsequently, a set of laws was adopted with the aim to improve judicial system and administration of justice. After the completion of the reform, judges would be selected through transparent and competitive process that included also a qualification exam. The composition of the High Council of Justice empowered to impose disciplinary sanctions and to dismiss judges, was reformed to guarantee the judicial independence. The eleven out of eighteen members of the Council should be judges. The prosecutors, who are the members of the Council, could not initiate disciplinary proceeding against a judge on the cases where the prosecutor's office was a party to.

12. The delegation informed that a law on legal aid was adopted in 2011, which defined the grounds and procedures for granting legal aid. Until the end of 2012, twenty seven centers would function to provide free legal aid in the Autonomous Republic of Crimea, regions, cities of Kyiv and Sevastopol. In the next two years, the Government planned to set up additional sixty seven centers throughout the country.

13. The delegation also reported about the progress made in establishing the national preventive mechanism under the OP-CAT by amending the Law on the Parliamentary Human Rights Commissioner and creating a legal basis for the 'Ombudsman Plus' model of the national preventive mechanism. As a result of those amendments, a special department within the structure of the Ombudsman's Office was established and a representative of the Ombudsman on this issue was designated. Additionally, the Action Plan on effective functioning of the national preventive mechanism was developed in 2012.

14. The delegation stated that all mentioned reforms that were carried out in the past years, had a common goal of promoting the rule of law and ensuring that human rights violations would not remain unpunished.

B. Interactive dialogue and responses by the State under review

15. During the interactive dialogue, 57 delegations made statements. Recommendations made during the dialogue are to be found in section II of the present report.

16. Malaysia welcomed Ukraine's cooperation with international human rights mechanisms including the UN Treaty bodies and Special Procedures. It encouraged the Government to continue implementing its 2009 -2016 National Plan of Action for the promotion of children's rights. It lauded the introduction of human rights in its mandatory curriculum as early as in primary education. Malaysia made recommendations.

17. Mexico recognized Ukraine's efforts to eradicate trafficking and the fight against corruption in the judicial system. It acknowledged efforts to improve the law on refugees and those in need of protection. Nevertheless, it remained concerned about cases involving refugee return without an evaluation of their need for international protection. Mexico made recommendations.

18. Morocco commended the ratification of the Convention for the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, its Optional Protocol as well as the adoption in 2011 of a National Plan of Action. Morocco inquired about the draft law to combat discrimination. With regard to the high rate of mortality due to HIV, Morocco inquired about measures taken to improve health conditions in detention. Morocco made a recommendation.

19. The Netherlands observed that Ukraine has signed but not ratified the Council of Europe Convention on preventing and combating violence against women and domestic violence. It welcomed a letter by the Ombudsman to recall draft law No. 8711, as the law might lead to excessive restrictions on freedom of expression. The Netherlands made recommendations.

20. Nicaragua commended the draft framework law on discrimination, which was being examined by Parliament considering it would be a step forward for Ukraine, particularly if it criminalizes acts such as discrimination. It expressed appreciation for the approval of the National Plan for the implementation of the Convention on the Rights of the Child by 2017. Nicaragua made recommendations.

21. Norway expressed deep concern about instances of selective justice in Ukraine and welcomed the approval of a new criminal procedures code. It appreciated Ukraine's active stance to integrate minorities. It expressed its concern at legislation under consideration that would explicitly discriminate against LGBT persons and limit their right to freedom of expression. Norway made recommendations.

22. Philippines noted Ukraine's ratification of the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and its Optional Protocol as well as other international instruments. It noted the establishment of human rights oversight bodies and praised the new Law on combatting trafficking in persons. Philippines made recommendations.

23. Poland noted the creation of the Commission on the Prevention of Torture at the Office of the President. It questioned the 2010 judicial reform which entrusted the Council of Justice with broad competences and might result in weakened judicial independence. Poland inquired about measures taken to promote pluralism of the media. Poland made recommendations.

24. Portugal welcomed the measures taken by Ukraine to implement the recommendations put forward during the 2008 review. However, it remained concerned about torture and ill-treatment in police custody. Portugal welcomed the adoption of the Law on Combating Human Trafficking. Portugal made recommendations.

25. The Republic of Korea noted with satisfaction amendments made to laws on the rights of persons with disabilities, in line with the CRPD. It expressed concern over allegations of torture and the widespread practice of using forced confession in criminal proceedings, in addition to problems faced by ethnic minorities. The Republic of Korea made recommendations.

26. The Republic of Moldova commended Ukraine for adopting the National Plan of Action for Children (2010-2016) which took into account the Millennium Development Goals. It welcomed amendments made so as to refine the legislation on combating domestic violence and the implementation of measures to prevent domestic violence. The Republic of Moldova made recommendations.

27. Tunisia took note of progress made to protect minorities as well as children's rights, and efforts to counter domestic violence and human trafficking. It noted that Ukraine had established the post of the Commissioner for Human Rights. It congratulated Ukraine on the creation of the Constitutional Assembly responsible for carrying out constitutional amendments. Tunisia made recommendations.

28. The Russian Federation welcomed the progress made in reforming legislation, the judiciary, law enforcement and the penitentiary system; and the work done to combat all forms of intolerance, xenophobia and racial discrimination. It welcomed the creation of the Ombudsman for children under the President's office. The Russian Federation noted the improvement in conditions of detention centres. It made recommendations.

29. Slovakia welcomed the ratification of CRPD's and its Optional Protocol and amendments made to several laws related to the rights of persons with disabilities. It took positive note of the standing invitation issued by Ukraine to Special Procedures. Slovakia made recommendations.

30. Slovenia welcomed ratification of the CRPD and the Council of Europe Convention on Action against Trafficking. Slovenia reiterated its request to elaborate on how a gender perspective had been included in the UPR follow-up process. It invited Ukraine to close the wage gap between men and women and to recruit more women for public office. Slovenia made recommendations.

31. Spain commended Ukraine for the ratification of the Convention on the Rights of the Persons with Disabilities and its Optional Protocol. It made recommendations.

32. Sri Lanka highlighted the preparation of comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation, and the inter-denominational consultative bodies assisting in combating religious intolerance. It noted efforts made in conjunction with international migration and labour organizations to combat and prevent trafficking. It welcomed efforts to protect the rights of women and children. Sri Lanka made recommendations.

33. Sweden stated that the new criminal procedure code is a step in the right direction but noted that the need for further reforms to the prosecutor's office and the independence of the court system, have been identified. Sweden raised concerns over the widespread of cases of police brutality and their impunity; as well as protection of rights of LGBT persons. It encouraged Ukraine to ratify the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court (ICC). Sweden made recommendations.

34. Regarding the questions on anti-discrimination measures, the delegation noted the adoption of a law on preventing and combating discrimination, which defined discrimination and further identified entities empowered to combat discrimination, and in particular granted the Ombudsman additional powers to address discrimination.

35. With regard to discrimination on the grounds of ethnicity, the delegation stated that, under the new concept of migration policy, combating racism and xenophobia, including against migrants was a strategic priority of the Government. Awareness-raising measures, among other preventive measures, had been taken to educate the public about cultural and traditional specificities of the migrant groups.

36. Furthermore, since April 2012, a national plan had been implemented to mold and promote the culture of tolerance in society, which comprised a range of preventive measures, including awareness raising and educational measures, social dialogue and cooperation with civil society organizations on those matters. The plan was developed based on the practice and recommendations of international organizations to help to reduce the number of racist incidents. The delegation informed that in 2009 amendments had also been made to the Criminal Code in order to take account of racist and religious motives of crimes, which would be considered as an aggravating factor in sentencing.

37. The delegation noted that Ukraine had also made progress in improving legislation to ensure equal rights for women and men. However, despite this progress, discriminatory acts still occurred. A draft law was submitted to the parliament to further improve legislation with a view to ensure equal opportunities of women and men in general and in particular equal gender representation in central and local government. The delegation explained that under the draft law complaints concerning discrimination in this area could be submitted to the Ombudsman, law enforcement bodies and the Courts.

38. In the draft law, a special attention was paid to address gender bias and stereotyping in advertising. Additionally, Expert Council which is responsible for reviewing cases of gender discrimination had been working to address stereotypes regarding gender roles of women and men in advertising. The Government developed and adopted standards for non-discriminatory advertising in close cooperation with public associations and the main players in advertising industry.

39. Ukraine paid particular attention to prevent and combat domestic violence, and in particular against children. Measures were taken to shape the culture of society that denounce domestic violence as a conflict solving tool in families and to improve the legislation and mechanisms in this area as well as the capacity of those institutions that work to assist victims and the effectiveness of law enforcement entities and courts in addressing domestic violence.

40. The delegation stated that the Government had been in the process of drafting amendments to the law on domestic violence in order to improve legal definition of domestic violence, broaden its scope and to ensure more effective protection of victims. In 2010, the Government had also adopted a plan of measures to carry out the national campaign against domestic violence. Social service centres for families worked in all regions that provided psychological, medical, informational and legal support to victims, in addition to existing services provided by support and hotlines services for children. The delegation highlighted the readiness of Ukraine to ratify the Council of Europe Convention on preventing and combating violence against women and domestic violence. For this purpose, the Government carried out a thorough study of the national legislation in view of the Convention and a working group was established to draft amendments based on the findings of the study in order to bring its legislation in conformity with the Convention.

41. With regard to questions on the mass media and access to information, Ukraine indicated the recent adoption of a law on access to public information and amendments to other laws regarding access to information. Individuals and legal entities could now request and receive promptly and effectively public information, including on the work of the central and local government. The Government initiated the process of establishing public television and radio. Since 2011, an inter-agency working group, which also included representatives of civil society, had been functioning to study legislation on freedom of expression and the protection of journalists and propose recommendations for further improvement of the national legislation.

42. In relation to the work of media during the election campaign, the delegation stated that measures had been adopted to examine issues affecting the work of journalists during this period. A monitoring centre had been established to support international election observers, and a telephone hotline had been set up to for reporting violations during the elections. The delegation also noted that the existing statistics demonstrated that opposition candidates received more broadcasting time than the representatives of ruling parties during the pre-election campaign.

43. Switzerland expressed concern at allegations of torture and ill-treatment by the police as well as the lack of investigations of such cases. It was concerned by the detention and treatment of members of the former government. Switzerland also expressed concern with discriminatory acts on the basis of race and nationality as well as the draft legislation discriminating LGBT persons. It made recommendations.

44. Thailand took note of Ukraine's fulfillment of obligations under ICCPR and CEDAW. It encouraged Ukraine to strengthen its policies and activities to promote gender equality and non-discrimination in employment. Thailand commended Ukraine for its efforts to combat violence against children and trafficking in children. It noted the ongoing preparation of comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation. Thailand made recommendations.

45. Romania appreciated the ratification of important conventions on human rights and the establishment of an Ombudsman institution. It welcomed the adoption of anti-discrimination legislation as an important step in assuring the equality of all citizens. Romania made recommendations.

46. Turkey noted with satisfaction that Ukraine has become party to several important international conventions in fields such as disabilities and the combat human trafficking. It noted that the Parliament has adopted a new Code of Criminal Procedure. Turkey referred to the situation of the Crimean Tatars. It made recommendations.

47. The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland noted the reform of the judicial system, including the new Criminal Procedure Code. It highlighted reports of selective justice and serious violations of fundamental legal principles in relation to recent trials. It was concerned by the discrimination of LGBT persons and by the draft Bill 8711. It made recommendations.

48. The United States of America expressed concern at the deterioration of fundamental freedoms and the rule of law, and widening corruption. It viewed positively the passage of the Criminal Procedure Code. It remained concerned over politically motivated trials, the imprisonment of the opposition, increased pressure on independent media, police abuse, trafficking in persons, discrimination of LGBT persons and the weak asylum system. The United States of America made recommendations.

49. Uruguay noted Ukraine's cooperation with the universal system of human rights including its mid-term report on UPR implementation and its standing invitation to special procedures. Uruguay referred to the discrimination against LGBT persons. Uruguay made recommendations.

50. Uzbekistan inquired about the measures taken to strengthen the institution of the Ombudsman for children's rights. It also requested about the follow up steps undertaken to improve full access to treatment for HIV infected persons. It also asked about measures taken to improve human rights situation in environmentally disadvantaged regions. Uzbekistan made recommendations.

51. Algeria noted ongoing efforts to combat racial discrimination and prepare comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation, encouraging the speedy adoption and implementation of such legislation. It echoed concerns by CERD over propaganda by extremist organizations. Algeria noted the need to improve gender equality in the field of employment. It made recommendations.
52. Argentina commended Ukraine for having adopted the National Plan of Action for the implementation of the Convention on Rights of the Child until 2016. It commended Ukraine for having enacted the Law for Refugees and persons in need of special or temporary protection. Argentina made recommendations.
53. Armenia commended Ukraine for ratifying a number of human rights instruments and bringing domestic legislation into line with international standards. It noted amendments to domestic legislation aimed at addressing racial discrimination. Armenia highlighted the attention given by the Government to the large Armenian community in Ukraine and expressed appreciation for measures adopted to protect minority rights. Armenia made recommendations.
54. Australia was concerned about the deteriorating situation regarding freedoms of assembly and expression and fair judicial process. It welcomed the withdrawal of draft legislation that would have re-criminalized defamation. However, it was deeply concerned about the draft bill outlawing the promotion of homosexuality and the selective and politically-motivated judicial processes applied against opposition figures. Australia made recommendations.
55. Austria expressed concern about the lack of judicial independence and the persecution of political opponents in Ukraine, recurring reports of torture, ill-treatment and other human rights violations by law enforcement officials. It welcomed initiatives to develop a juvenile justice system, but was concerned about the high percentage of imprisoned juveniles and poor support for their social reintegration. Austria made recommendations.
56. Azerbaijan welcomed the establishment of a Children's Ombudsman, the inclusion of human rights education in school curricula, measures to prevent domestic violence, and the establishment of the Commission on the Prevention of Torture. It requested further information on draft anti-discrimination legislation, especially relating to gender equality. Azerbaijan made a recommendation.
57. Bangladesh welcomed initiatives to combat xenophobia and racial and ethnic discrimination, but noted concerns by treaty bodies at the increase in racially-motivated offences and extremist organization activities. It shared concerns expressed by CEDAW about stereotyped gender roles and responsibilities, sexist representation of women in the media and disproportionately high women's poverty. Bangladesh made recommendations.
58. Belgium encouraged the authorities to organize its elections according to OSCE criteria. It commended Ukraine on the adoption of the new Criminal Procedure Code, but wished to see the rule of law strengthened further. It asked what steps had been taken to promote an independent judiciary and to end corruption. Belgium made recommendations.
59. Brazil welcomed the adoption of the National Plan of Action to Implement the Convention on the Rights of the Child for the Period up to 2016 and the establishment of the Children's Ombudsman. It commended Ukraine's commitment to combat discrimination and promote equality. It requested information on measures adopted to foster social, economic and cultural rights. Brazil made recommendations.
60. Bulgaria commended Ukraine for ratifying many international human rights instruments, including key conventions of the Council of Europe, and the establishment of the Office of the Parliamentary Human Rights Commissioner (Ombudsman). It noted ongoing process on comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation. Bulgaria asked how the recommendation by CERD was reflected in the new anti-discrimination act.

61. Cambodia was encouraged by steps taken to enhance the promotion and protection of human rights, including initiatives and legislation on children's rights, judicial reforms, measures to prevent human trafficking and domestic violence and the ratification of key international instruments, in particular the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and its Optional Protocol. Cambodia made a recommendation.

62. Canada remained concerned about prison conditions and asked about measures that were adopted to guarantee detainees' right to be treated humanely, including steps to strengthen complaints mechanisms. It welcomed steps taken to raise awareness of domestic violence and racism. Canada was concerned about attacks and discrimination against the LGBT community and draft legislation threatening freedom of speech and assembly. Canada made recommendations.

63. Chile noted with satisfaction the ratification of several important human rights conventions and the numerous domestic legal and administrative reforms undertaken. It welcomed the ongoing process to draft anti-discrimination legislation. It urged Ukraine to continue its reform process, speeding up the implementation of measures to promote and protect human rights, including improving its judicial system and institutional structures and mechanisms. Chile made recommendations.

64. As to the protection of the children's rights, the delegation stated that Ukraine implemented various measures to prevent the phenomena of so called 'social orphans' by supporting families in general and in particular, families facing difficult social conditions. The state financial assistance for families with a new-born child has increased more than 3 times since 2008. The Government also implemented a program of financial support to young families with children to meet their housing needs. All those measures were incorporated in the new state social program for families, which was adopted in 2012.

65. The Delegation also reported about specific measures adapted to assist families in difficult social conditions with the aim to prevent the separation of children from families due to financial reasons. A national strategy on addressing the issue of social orphans was approved by the Presidential decree in October 2012. The strategy adopted a comprehensive approach in prevention of the separation of children from their families by inter alia addressing financial problems of families at early stages possible through financial assistance. Centres of Social Services for Families, Children and Youth functioned nationwide and carried out the main work required by the Strategy. Several other support centres also functioned such as psychological support centres for families, centres for children deprived of family care and centres for the support of a mother and a child. The Institute for Social Workers was also established to train professional social workers.

66. The delegation stated that a special assistance was provided to those children who were temporary deprived of a family care. Special rehabilitation centres functioned to provide psychological, social, educational and legal support to such children. Those centres worked also with children who were victims of domestic violence. The number of such centres doubled since 2005.

67. Moreover, the Government worked to decrease the number of children in the care institutions. In the past years, the number of children living in the family-type institutions and foster care had steadily increased. In 2010, over 70 per cent of orphans and children deprived of family care lived in families or family-type of institutions. The number of adoption of children by the Ukrainian families has also increased. In 2012, the budget allocation for the financial support to foster care and families with adopted children has increased by 20 per cent compared to 2011.

68. The delegation reported that the amendments to the law on secondary education were adopted in 2010 to introduce inclusive education for children with special needs. Since 2011, the number of children with disabilities studying in primary and secondary schools, vocational training institutions and universities has been increasing. New teaching materials had been developed and training of teachers had been carried out for the inclusive education. The remuneration of teachers working with children with special needs has increased. The Government planned to continue taking measures to improve inclusive education for children with special needs.

69. The delegation reported about the newly adopted law on minorities languages. The Government also identified the need to improve the main law on national minorities, which was adopted in 2001 and thus, it has started drafting amendments to the Law. The Government also implemented various measures for successful integration of Crimean Tatars who were deported from the territory of Ukraine in 1944 and returned back in the past years. In particular, the Government supported the construction of housing for returned families of Crimean Tatars. The schools were establishing to provide education in the Crimean Tatar language. The religious buildings were returned to the minority community.

70. The delegation informed about a new strategy developed for the protection and integration of the Roma, which cover the period until 2020. The strategy paid a special attention to the issues of education, employment, housing and access to health care of the Roma. The delegation also reported about special measures taken by the Government for registration of the Roma and integration of the Roma children in school system.

71. China welcomed legislation enacted to combat racial and religious discrimination and human trafficking, and the emphasis placed by Ukraine on protecting women and children's rights by formulating a national action plan to combat domestic violence and provide assistance to victims. It commended the publicity campaign on gender equality. China made a recommendation.

72. Cuba noted steps to draft legislation on anti-discrimination and requested further information regarding this draft. It highlighted efforts to promote gender equality and prevent domestic violence. It appreciated the priority given by Ukraine to protecting children's rights, including measures adopted to prevent the sale of children, and encouraged it to continue efforts in that area. Cuba made recommendations.

73. Cyprus welcomed legislation, programmes and policies implemented to prevent trafficking in persons and establish monitoring mechanisms to assist trafficked children. It requested more information on steps taken to provide compensation for victims. Cyprus encouraged Ukraine to create more rehabilitation shelters and social integration for victims and ensure systematic investigation, prosecution and punishment of traffickers.

74. Czech Republic expressed appreciation for Ukraine's comprehensive report on measures adopted on human rights. It asked for more details on measures adopted to ensure the investigation and punishment of acts of threat, harassment or violence against human rights defenders reported by the Special Rapporteur on human rights defenders in 2011. Czech Republic made recommendations.

75. Egypt was concerned about racism, xenophobia and intolerance towards foreigners, immigrants and ethnic minorities. It noted ongoing efforts to adopt anti-discrimination legislation, which it hoped would include clear criminal liability provisions. It acknowledged efforts to amend the Criminal Procedure Code and introduce new judicial guarantees, but pointed out that prolonged pre-trial detention should be addressed. Egypt made recommendations.

76. Estonia encouraged Ukraine to respect freedom of expression and to adopt a law on freedom of assembly in line with international standards. It welcomed the new Criminal Procedure Code, the approval of a juvenile justice system plan and the adoption of new legislation on refugees. It encouraged Ukraine to address deficiencies in the law on refugees. Estonia made recommendations.

77. Finland welcomed ratification of the CRPD and its optional protocol and amendments to legislation on the rights of persons with disabilities, but was concerned about their effective implementation. It was also concerned about draft legislation criminalizing references to homosexuality in the media or public domain, which would contradict Ukraine's international human rights obligations. Finland made recommendations.

78. France welcomed measures adopted to respond to allegations of torture and ill-treatment, but noted that they seemed insufficient. It was concerned about increasing violence against persons because of their sexual orientation and at attempts by Parliament to adopt legislation criminalizing the promotion of homosexuality. It was also concerned about pressure exerted on the independent media and journalists. France made recommendations.

79. Germany expressed its appreciation at efforts to implement the recommendations of the first UPR cycle, but remained concerned about continued human rights violations. It encouraged Ukraine to abandon draft legislation criminalizing the promotion of homosexuality and to refrain from other legislation infringing on the human rights and fundamental freedoms of LGBT persons. Germany made recommendations.

80. Hungary asked for information on the implementation of the new language bill and hoped regional status would be granted to the Hungarian language in the Sub-Carpathian region. It was concerned at reports that courts accept evidence obtained as a result of ill-treatment; the ineffectiveness of the legal aid system as well as an inadequate legal framework for independent lawyers. Hungary regretted that Ukraine had failed to ratify the Rome Statute. Hungary made recommendations.

81. India commended Ukraine on ratifying international human rights conventions. It welcomed the corpus of laws and regulations introduced to ensure children's rights, not least the establishment of the Children's Ombudsman and amendments to education legislation. It urged Ukraine to ensure effective implementation of the National Plan of Action for Children (2010-2016). It asked when the draft anti-discrimination legislation might be adopted.

82. Indonesia welcomed ratification of the CRPD. It noted the establishment of Roma ethnic cultural associations in Ukraine and the amendment to the Act on Principles of Social Protection for Homeless Persons and Abandoned Children. It commended Ukraine on its efforts to combat trafficking in persons, particularly children, through legislation. Indonesia encouraged Ukraine to step up its efforts in facilitating the issuance of identity documents and birth certificates for the Roma. Indonesia made recommendations.

83. Islamic Republic of Iran took note of Ukraine's national report and introductory statement. It shared the concerns raised in the OHCHR compilation report on Ukraine. It made recommendations.

84. Iraq commended the establishment of a separate institutional, legislative and executive mechanism to bring about gender equality. It valued national efforts to provide comprehensive and full education for children with special needs. It welcomed special measures to combat juvenile delinquency and introduce integration programmes, as well as efforts to combat corruption in the judiciary. Iraq made recommendations.

85. Ireland commended Ukraine on progress achieved in implementing commitments made following the first Universal Periodic Review. It was concerned about the lack of explicit legal protection against discrimination based on sexual orientation. It commended Ukraine on the recent ratification of the revised European Convention on the Adoption of Children. Ireland made recommendations.

86. Italy welcomed the recent adoption of the new Criminal Procedure Code, but remained concerned about the national penitentiary system. It noted with appreciation measures adopted to improve protection of women and children's rights such as the Combating Trafficking in Persons Act, but remained concerned by cases of domestic violence, child prostitution and pornography. Italy made recommendations.

87. Kazakhstan welcomed ratification of the CoE Convention on the Protection of Children against Sexual Exploitation and Sexual Abuse. It highlighted that Ukraine had ratified the core international legal human rights treaties and other international instruments. It expressed its appreciation of the Government's efforts to secure and maintain the rights of ethnic groups, including the Kazakh Diaspora. Kazakhstan made recommendations.

88. Lithuania welcomed priority given to eradicating human trafficking and efforts to bring Ukraine's legal system into line with international standards, but noted that the lack of independence and transparency in the judicial system must be addressed. It also noted that prison overcrowding, poor detention conditions, high mortality and cases of torture and ill-treatment of prisoners were still areas of concern. Lithuania made a recommendation.

89. The delegation reported about the establishment of a special body responsible for the implementation of a state migration policy in 2010 and the adoption of the Law on Refugees and Persons in Need of Complementary or Temporary Protection aimed to improve the national legislation in view of international human rights standards. As a result, progress was documented in a number of areas, including unified refugee status determination procedure, strengthened support for refugee families, special guarantees for asylum-seeking children and strengthened legal provisions to ensure the principle of non-refoulement. Special measures were also adopted for unaccompanied asylum-seeking children and the integration of refugees in society.

90. The delegation reported about several measures undertaken to implement the 2011 Law on combating trafficking in persons. The Ministry of Social Policy was assumed the role of a national coordinator for the work of preventing and combating human trafficking, in particular trafficking in children. The new comprehensive state social program for preventing human trafficking was also adopted with the aim to improve the state assistance to trafficking victims and increase public awareness on this issue. Centres of social services for families and children served as main bodies in providing medical, legal, psychological and material support to the victims. Such centres functioned in 20 regions and additional centres were planned for 7 regions.

91. The delegation stated that unlike prisons, the pre-trial detention centres faced the problem of overcrowding. The construction of new buildings was among various measures undertaken to solve the problem of overcrowding. The implementation of those measures allowed to document reduction in the population of the detention centres and to ensure living space of 3 square meters per one inmate with the goal to ensure 4 square meters per an inmate in the nearest future.

92. The delegation also reported about various measures that were implemented to improve the access to health care in penitentiary system. In 2011, a large proportion of medical equipment in medical establishments of penitentiary system was modernised. Furthermore, the legal framework for access to medical services in prisons was improved. As a result, if an adequate medical assistance could not be provided in medical establishments of prisons, then the necessary medical assistance would be provided by the establishments of the Ministry of Health based on the inter-agency agreement between the Ministry of Justice and Ministry of Health. Additionally, starting from 2012, a prisoner has a right to choose freely his/her doctor, including from medical personnel of the Ministry of Health.

93. The delegation also informed that steady decrease in cases of tuberculosis in prisons was documented in the past years. Each detainee or prisoner is entitled to take a HIV test on a voluntary basis and receive medical and psychological support.

94. The delegation highlighted that Ukraine adopted the state program to prevent and combat HIV/AIDS and established the state national council to coordinate the work in this area. Due to effective access to preventive measures, the mother- to -child transmission rate of HIV infection has significantly decreased. Additionally, the antiretroviral treatment coverage has increased in 2012.

95. In respect to the ratification of the Rome Statute of the ICC, the delegation stated that Ukraine remained committed to the idea of the establishment of the international court. Ukraine was also demonstrated its full commitment in effective execution of judgments of the European Court of Human Rights of the Council of Europe.

96. In conclusion, the delegation stated that the universal periodic review was an important opportunity for an objective evaluation of human rights situation in the country. The delegation expressed its appreciation for the participation of all delegates and for their questions, especially those provided in advance.
