1. This Report has been prepared in pursuance with the guidelines set forth in the Human Rights Council Resolution 5/1 and the General Guidelines for Preparation of Information in the framework of the Universal Period Review (UPR). Taking into consideration the applicable national legislation in areas covered by the Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families, the possibility for ratification of this Convention will be additionally considered.

6. There are continual efforts for the harmonization of the national legal and institutional framework with international human rights instruments. Macedonia continues to closely cooperate with treaty bodies established under various UN and Council of Europe conventions and undertakes activities in pursuance with their respective recommendations.

A. Judiciary – Recommendation 26

1. Justice system reform

11. During the reporting period the Government focused its activities on the justice system reforms, aimed at defining the normative framework, which strengthens independence and efficiency of the judiciary. The novelties introduced under the Law on Civil Procedure in 2011 are especially important in this context. This Law incorporates provisions, which accelerate judicial proceedings by shortening deadlines and by preventing parties to the proceedings from abusing their rights, introduce a case management system in courts, electronic delivery system, audio recording of court hearings etc.

12. The new Law on Criminal Procedure adopted in 2010 (which will enter into force on 1 December 2013) incorporates tools for countering crime, especially organized crime. The most important elements of this Law are: transfer of investigation competences from investigative judges to public prosecutors, control of the police by the Public Prosecutor's Office, introduction of plea bargaining, etc. In the context of efficiency of the judiciary, the inflow of cases is managed and the backlog of cases has been reduced. In 2012, the courts completed all new cases and settled 32.247 backlog cases. The number of pending cases at the end of 2012, compared to 2011 was reduced by 33.020 cases or by 15%. In 2012, first instance courts completed all civil law cases and additionally settled 8.136 backlog cases. In addition, the total number of pending cases has been reduced by exempting from the courts' competences non-contentious cases transferring them to Notaries Public and Enforcement Agents.

13. 33 Public Relations Offices have been opened in the courts and PR officers have been designated.

14. Courts of all instances regularly publish their judgments at their web sites.

15. As part of activities for improvement of the justice information system, the automated computer case management system started functioning in 2009. This system facilitates automatic assignment of new cases to judges, and opening electronic case files, in which all of the relevant information from the hard copy case file is entered.

16. With a view to establishing a uniformed system of court statistics, a Methodology of Judicial Statistics has been adopted, based on the Guidelines on Judicial Statistics (GOJUST), adopted by the European Commission for the Efficiency of Justice (CEPEJ). A software application has been designed for collection, processing and analysis of statistics.

17. From 2007 to 2010, 11 new justice system bodies were established: Judicial Council, Council of Public Prosecutors, Academy for Training of Judges and Public Prosecutors, Administrative Court, Higher Administrative Court, Court of Appeals in the city of Gostivar, Higher Public Prosecutor's Office in the city of Gostivar, Basic Public Prosecutor's Office for fighting organized crime and corruption, Department for prosecution of organized crime and corruption at the Skopje I First Instance Criminal Court, Department for cases relating to trial within reasonable time at the Supreme Court, and Agency for Management of Impounded Property.

2. Independence and autonomy of the judiciary

18. The key elements in enhancing the independence of the judiciary are election, accountability, and evaluation of judges. New provisions were introduced in all these areas by which the national legislation was fully harmonized with international standards. New conditions for election of judges were introduced¹, the grounds for establishing unprofessional work and malfeasance by judges and their disciplinary responsibility have been redefined on objective criteria. The system for evaluation of judges was fully established, under which the work of judges is qualitatively and quantitatively evaluated, based on the overall results of their work, and by direct monitoring of their judicial performance.

19. The Academy for Training of Judges and Public Prosecutors is operational as of 2006. The new Law on the Academy for Training of Judges and Public Prosecutors adopted in 2010 contains improved provisions relating to initial and continual training. The conditions for admission of candidates for initial training were made stricter, which will help improve the quality of staff working in the judiciary. The Academy provides initial training for future judges/ prosecutors and continual training for judges and other staff. Four generations with 80 candidates for judges/ public prosecutors completed the initial training. 28 January 2013 inclusive, 61 candidates of the four generations having completed the Academy courses were elected to the office of a judge or a public prosecutor.

20. The Judicial Budget will be doubled in the period from 2013 to 2015, with equal annual increase of 0.1%, reaching 0.4% of the GDP in 2012, and reaching 0.8% of the GDP in 2015. This is envisaged in the 2010 Law Amending the Law on the Judicial Budget.

B. The Ombudsman – Recommendation 5

21. Under the amendments to the 2009 Law on the Ombudsman, its mandate has been strengthened with the establishment of separate departments for protection of children's rights and rights of persons with disabilities, for protection of citizens against discrimination, torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment and a department for equitable representation.

22. The Ombudsman filed an accreditation application with the International Coordinating Committee of National Human Rights Institutions and acquired status B in October 2011. In its evaluation, the Sub-Committee on Accreditation has established that the Ombudsman's Office of the Republic of Macedonia has a wide-scope mandate for human rights protection, but not for human rights promotion. The Sub-Committee has also requested introduction of a pluralist approach in the appointment of persons to managerial positions, especially in the election of the Ombudsman's Deputies. The recommendations emphasized the need to advance the independence and the public trust in this institution, to ensure funds for the exercise of the mandate of the National Preventive Mechanism in line with the OP-CAT (the 2013 Budget of the Ombudsman's Office has a separate budget line for the NPM), and to strengthen the cooperation with the international human rights system.

23. In this respect, the Inter-Ministerial Human Rights Body tasked the Ministry of Justice, in cooperation with the Ombudsman, to draft the necessary amendments to the legislative framework regulating the mandate of the Ombudsman, by which the process of undertaking measures for ensuring an "A" status has started.

24. Upon the ratification of the Optional Protocol to the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment in 2008, the Ombudsman was appointed a National Preventive Mechanism, which started performing its tasks to this end in 2011. In 2011, the NPM conducted 18 preventive visits to remand/prison facilities, while in 2012 it conducted 32 visits. The Mechanism functions as a separate department for prevention of torture, tasked also with independent monitoring of detention facilities in police stations. In 2011 and 2012, 29 police stations were inspected, of which 24 were regular and 5 follow-up visits. The first Report of the NPM covering 2011 was submitted to the Subcommittee on Prevention of Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading or Punishment. In compliance with UN recommendations, preventive and protection activities are completely separated. The Mechanism conducts regular unannounced controls of all facilities used for deprivation or limitation of freedom, in its special reports it takes note of complaints as an indication of possible cases of torture, and forwards filed applications to the relevant departments at the Ombudsman's Office for further processing.

25. In conducting its visits the NPM has unimpeded access to all facilities chosen to be inspected, having also the unimpeded possibility of independently choosing persons deprived of freedom to be interviewed, without any supervision or witnesses. It has good cooperation with the Sector for Internal Control and Professional Standards at the Ministry of the Interior.

C. Commission for protection against discrimination

26. The Commission is an autonomous and independent body, which started working in January 2011. Its competences are defined by the Law on Prevention of and Protection against Discrimination. It is composed of seven members, appointed by the Assembly of the Republic of Macedonia to a five-year term, with the right to one re-appointment.

27. The Commission has competences to: process complaints; produce opinions/recommendations on specific cases of discrimination; inform the public about cases of discrimination and take steps to promote and educate about equality, human rights, non-discrimination; monitor the implementation of the Law on the Prevention of and Protection against Discrimination; launch initiatives to amend the legislation; cooperate with bodies responsible for ensuring equality and protecting human rights in the local government; give recommendations to state bodies for implementation of measures for safeguarding equality; give opinions on draft laws that concern the protection against discrimination, etc.

28. From 1 January 2012 to 31 December 2012, the Commission received 75 applications, which is an increase as compared with the first year of the Commission's functioning when it received 60 applications.

D. Other institutions for human rights protection and promotion

29. In 2012, under a decision of the Government, the composition of the Inter-Ministerial Human Rights Body was raised to a higher level and is now headed by the Minister of Foreign Affairs, while State Secretaries and directors at in-line ministries and agencies, respectively are its members. One of its main tasks is to improve coordination of activities for the implementation of recommendations contained in reports of relevant UN committees, as well as of the Council of Europe, the EU, etc.

III. Progress achieved since the consideration of the first report of the Republic of Macedonia in respect of human rights promotion and protection

A. Protection against discrimination – Recommendations 13, 18a

30. On 8 April 2010, the Assembly adopted the Law on the Prevention of and Protection against Discrimination, which makes legal protection much more accessible, especially by envisaging the establishment of a Commission for Protection against Discrimination, and by setting forth a special court procedure for protection against discrimination.

31. This is the first law in Macedonia that tackles the discrimination issue in a comprehensive manner, and incorporates the fundamental relevant international principles and standards. Also, there are a number of other special laws, which regulate the right to equality of treatment in various areas, as well as laws in which the principle of equality is elaborated in the context of a specific discriminatory ground. The Law on the Prevention and Protection against Discrimination explicitly prohibits direct and indirect discrimination, on the grounds of sex, race, skin colour, gender, belonging to marginalized group, ethnic origin, language, citizenship, social origin, religion or confession, other types of belief, education, political belonging, personal or social status, mental and physical disability, age, family or marital status, property status, health condition. The Law contains an open-ended list of discriminatory grounds. This is confirmed with Article 3, and paragraph 3 of Article 5 in which at the end of the list of discriminatory grounds the following provision is stipulated: "or on any other grounds established by the law or by ratified international agreements." Such open-ended list of discriminatory grounds prohibits any discrimination on grounds of any personal characteristic that is not explicitly referred to in this Law.

32. The Law is applied as of 1 January 2011. There are numerous trainings/campaigns pursued by various stakeholders to raise the public awareness about the non-discrimination principle.

33. In 2012, the 2012-2015 National Strategy on Equality and Non-Discrimination on Grounds of Ethnic Affiliation, Age, Mental and Physical Disability and Gender was adopted. At the beginning of 2013, the Government adopted the 2013 Operative Plan for implementation of the Strategy.

34. In accordance with the Law on Broadcasting, the Broadcasting Council implements continual activities with a view to ensuring freedom of expression and protection of pluralism in the media.

35. Article 11 of the Law regulates the issue of the ownership structure of broadcasters². Articles 13 to 20 of the Law contain provisions on the protection of pluralism in the media, diversity and transparency in the work of broadcasters. Article 68 sets forth the right to free reception and transmission of information and the right to freedom of expression, as one of the fundamental principles of radio and TV programs.

36. The Council monitors the alignment of programs with program principles and supervises the correct implementation of legal provisions on ownership of media outlets and on media concentration.

37. All founders of broadcasting companies have the duty of submitting to the Council a statement certified by a Notary Public confirming the they are not in violation of the provisions of Chapter III of the Law on Broadcasting (which are related to the protection of pluralism, diversity and transparency in the work of broadcasters) and that there are no obstacles within the meaning of Article 11, in conjunction with Article 18 of the Law (that related persons are not permitted to be owners of media outlets).

38. The Council has raised the issue of respect for Article 11 of the Law, first in March 2011, then again in January 2012, when it called broadcasters to submit a statement that the broadcasters had not violated provisions contained in Article 11. In 2012, three broadcasters the founders or co-founders of which were holders of public offices or members of their families, or who had a share in the ownership structure of these broadcasters, aligned their ownership structure with the Law. The same year, the Council undertook activities to precisely establish the ownership structure of broadcasters organized as stock holding companies.

39. In May 2013, the Council sent a written communication to all broadcasters underlining that in case following the 2013 local elections there were eventual violations of Article 11, broadcasters needed to align their work with the Law.

40. The Broadcasting Council monitors if there are cases of prohibited media concentration. In such cases, the Council demands that the broadcaster adjust its work/structure with the provisions of the Law within the legally prescribed period.

41. In 2011, the Council established prohibited media concentration with 5 broadcasters (2 local TV stations, 1 national and 2 local radio stations) in violation of Article 13, paragraph 3 of the Law on Broadcasting. After the Council ordered these broadcasters to align their work/structure with the provisions of the Law within the legally prescribed period, all five broadcasters submitted evidence that they had removed the irregularities.

42. In 2012, there were no registered cases of prohibited media concentration; while in 2013, there have been such cases with one satellite TV station, one national and one local radio station. The Council ordered these broadcasters to align their work with the provisions of the Law within three months as of the date when prohibited media concentration had been established.

43. The independence, autonomy and responsibility of broadcasters, editors, journalists and others participating in producing programs and in designing the editorial policy are other principles upon which radio and TV programs are based, as set forth in Article 68 of the Law.

harmonized with standards of the Council of Europe and the OSCE on ensuring freedom of expression and of media.

The Law stipulates an obligation for all media to ensure protection of juvenile audience, all media need to adopt a document establishing rights and obligations of the editor-in-chief and the relations between editors and journalists. The right of journalists to work in pursuance with their free assessment and conviction, while respecting journalists' ethics is guaranteed, as is the right of journalists not to disclose their source of information. Media outlets also have the obligation to include the impresum, which ensures protection of the public, i.e. the right of the public to know the holder of information and the producer of the contents, and this brings also the possibility for evaluation and exchange, possibility to exercise the right to a correction in the media, protection of copyrights, etc. The Law prescribes the obligation of all media publishers to publicly state information about their ownership structure, which ensures protection of media pluralism and the possibility for effective enforcement of provisions not allowing media concentration.

49. The draft Law on Audio and Audiovisual Services transposes the Audiovisual Media Service Directive 13/2010/EC. The Law regulates the rights, duties, and responsibilities of broadcasters, providers of audiovisual media services upon request and operators of public electronic communication networks broadcasting or re-broadcasting programs of broadcasters.
