Acknowledgments

1. The Government of Samoa acknowledges the work of the UPR taskforce in the compilation of this report and the technical assistance provided by OHCHR and SPC/RRRT during the process. Furthermore, all contributions made by stakeholders are acknowledged as essential in being able to provide a full report on the successes and challenges within Samoa in the protection and promotion of human rights.

Introduction

2. The Government of Samoa (“Government”) welcomes this opportunity to provide a response to the recommendations made at the first reporting cycle of the Universal Periodic Review. Samoa’s first Universal Periodic Review (UPR) took place in May 2011.

3. As stated in the first report, the Government of Samoa remains committed to the promotion and protection of human rights of all persons and will continue to strive to address these challenges in cooperation with Non-Governmental and Civil Society organisations, individuals, development partners including international and regional organizations in the area of human rights.

4. This National Report (“Report”) is drafted with reference to the second cycle of the Universal Periodic Review (“UPR”) on the four year human rights progress in Samoa. This Report is submitted in accordance with Paragraph 5 of the Annex of Human Rights Council resolution 16/21.

I. Methodology and consultation

5. This Report is the result of work undertaken by the National Universal Periodic Review Taskforce Working Group (“Taskforce”) which included a national consultation and joint information session for Government and NGOs on the 2nd Periodic Review Report.

6. These consultations were carried out by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade (MFAT) with taskforce members from the Office of the Attorney General (OAG), Office of the Ombudsman/National Human Rights Institution (NHRI), Ministry of Women, Community and Social Development (MWCSD), Ministry of Commerce, Industry and Labour (MCIL), Ministry of Health (MOH), Ministry of Education, Sports and Culture (MESC), Ministry of the Prime Minister and Cabinet (MPMC), Public Service Commission (PSC), Ministry of Police (MOP), Samoa Prison and Correctional Services (SPCS), Ministry of Finance (MOF), Ministry of Justice and Courts Administration (MJCA), and the National University of Samoa (NUS).

7. The Pacific Islands Forum Secretariat, Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights Secretariat and the Secretariat of the Pacific Community provided technical and financial assistance to the Government. The Government ensured that the processes involved in preparing the report were inclusive and invited members of the civil society to the first consultation.

8. The first consultation on the report with Government and civil society groups was held from 18–21 August 2015 in Apia, Samoa. Government also invited contributions from national Non-Government Organisations (NGOs) on the adopted recommendations and emerging human rights issues.

II. Existing human rights framework

A. National laws, legislation and treaty obligations

9. The Constitution of the Independent State of Samoa (1960) is still the supreme law of the land, with Part II setting out the fundamental rights recognised by Samoa which includes the right to life, personal liberty, freedom from inhumane treatment, freedom from forced labour, right of fair trial, rights concerning criminal law, freedom of religion, rights concerning religious instruction, freedom of speech, assembly, association, movement and residence, a person's rights regarding property and freedom from discriminatory legislation.

10. Although Samoa is not a party to all core human rights treaties, the Government is committed to ensuring effective monitoring of the human rights situation on the ground and to meet the targets outlined in the Constitution, National Development Plan and related frameworks. Samoa adheres to the United Nations Charter and the Universal Declaration on Human Rights.

11. The international human rights treaties ratified by Samoa are: (1) Convention on the Elimination of all forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW); (2) Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC); (3) International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR); and (4) International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearances (CED).

12. Samoa is ensuring that it complies with its international obligations and has cooperated with specific international human rights mechanisms to support the establishment of its National Human Rights Commission.

B. National measures and policies

13. The National development strategy for Samoa namely SDS (2012–2016) has as its theme "Boosting Productivity for Sustainable Development".

14. The document presents the key development strategies and priority sectors for the development of Samoa in the four years 2012–2016 and drew on the review of the previous SDS and views expressed during the stakeholder consultations. The 2012-16 SDS placed emphasis on the implementation of the three pillars of sustainable development, i.e strengthening economic resilience through increasing investment in the productive sectors of the economy namely tourism and agriculture/fisheries as well as providing key infrastructure. As well, priority remains on the promotion of an educated and healthy population, social cohesion with enhanced quality service delivery for all. The Strategy also paid recognition of the importance of the environment through sustainable management of natural resources, increased investment in renewable energy sources, and mainstreaming climate change and disaster resilience. Additional to the integrated consideration of all the three pillars of sustainable development is the emphasis placed on the prioritising the needs of the most vulnerable groups.

15. The processes for the development of the new SDS (2017–2020) have begun and follow the normal procedures for nationwide consultations. It is the intention that the 2030 agenda inclusive of the SDGs as well as the S.A.M.O.A Pathway will be integrated into the new Strategy in the same way the MDGs were.

16. The 15 completed sector plans are the modality through which the national development strategy is implemented namely: Agriculture/fisheries, Education, Communications, Community Development, Energy, Environment, Finance, Health, Infrastructure, Law & Justice, Public administration, Transport, Tourism, Trade Commerce

& Manufacturing, Water and Sanitation, Gender, climate change and disaster risk management are cross cutting elements of the national development strategy.

17. The Samoa Law and Justice Sector Plan 2012–2016 details the Sector’s four-yearly objectives, goals and primary strategies and focuses on five Sector Goals:

- (a) Ensuring community safety through improved crime management and prevention;
- (b) Improving access to justice, law and legal services;
- (c) Recognising customary-based justice and integrating or harmonising it with the formal justice system;
- (d) Promoting integrity and good governance in formal and customary processes and services; and
- (e) Building Sector agency capacity and improving service coordination.

C. Official authorities and State institutions with human rights mandate

Office of the Ombudsman

18. The Komesina o Sulufaiga (Ombudsman) Act 1988 has been repealed and replaced by the Ombudsman (Komesina o Sulufaiga) Act 2013. The new Act expands the mandate of the Office so that it is now responsible for (1) ensuring the application of good governance by public agencies; (2) the promotion and protection of human rights (thus becoming the National Human Rights Institution); and (3) the investigation of complaints against the police and other prescribed forces. In 2015 the Constitution was amended to include the appointment and functions of the Ombudsman.

Samoa Law Reform Commission

19. The SLRC was established in 2008 as part of the Office of the Attorney General and was later formally separated and became independent from the Office of the Attorney General in 2013.

20. Since the UPR in 2011 the SLRC has been actively engaged in legislative reforms in order to achieve compliance with the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW) and Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC). A total of 11 laws have since been reformed, including the reform of the Crimes Ordinance 1961 which is now repealed by the Crimes Act 2013.

21. A legislative compliance review of the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD) was conducted in 2012 and a comprehensive Legislative Compliance Review of the laws of Samoa was completed in April 2015. There is an intention to reform laws to domesticate CRPD. The legislative compliance review is near complete and trainings have been conducted and are still ongoing in relation to CRPD.

The Electoral Commission

22. The work of the Office of the Electoral Commissioner leading up to the 2016 General Election focused on ensuring that all citizens of Samoa eligible under the Electoral Act 1963 to become voters are given the opportunity to register themselves on the electoral rolls so that they can exercise their right to express their freedom of expression by either casting their vote or otherwise.

23. As Samoa has become a signature to the Convention for the Rights of People with Disabilities, an emphasis was placed on registering people with disabilities both in Upolu and Savaii. Plans are also in place to convert electoral materials into braille form so that the electoral process is as accessible as possible to all citizens of Samoa regardless of their gender, status or whether or not you have a disability.

24. Furthermore plans are also in place to identify special ballot booths specifically for people of disabilities, and those with mobility issues. Temporary ramps will be built at these booths so that accessibility is not an issue.

III. Implementation of international human rights obligations and public awareness of human rights

25. The Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade is responsible for facilitating human rights treaty body reporting. This responsibility is shared with the Ministry of Women, Community and Social Development who lead on CEDAW and CRC reporting.

26. The courts are independent and have in the reporting period used human rights standards and norms in making decisions. Some key decisions protecting the rights of the child and women, as well as persons with disabilities include:

(a) In the case of Police v BA [2014] WSYC 2 (12 June 2014), a young person was charged with sexual conduct with a child under 12 years old pursuant to section 58 (1) of the Crimes Act 2013. In considering the sentence for this young offender, Justice Tuatagaloa stated at paragraph 52: “I am also mindful of the rights of young people under the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child; the rights of the young people to have their needs for rehabilitation and reintegration respected through the criminal justice system”.

(b) In the matter of Police v Lemalu [2015] WSSC 79 (20 August 2015), the accused appeared for sentence on two charges of sexual conduct with a dependent family member under 21 years old. The accused was 43 years old and the victim was 15 years old at the time of the offending. In discussion of the sentencing features, the Honourable Chief Justice Sapolu highlighted at paragraph 26 the CRC by stating: “I am also mindful of the rights of young people under the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child; the rights of the young people to have their need for rehabilitation and reintegration respected through the criminal justice system.”

27. In recent years there has been an increase in awareness programs delivered by the Ministry of Women, Community and Social Development, Ministry of Police, Samoa Family Health Association, Samoa Victim Support, Samoa Faafafine Association, Samoa Family Health Association, Nuanua o le Alofa, SENESE, Loto Taumafai, Special Olympics, Pan Pacific South East Asia Women’s Association, National Council of Churches, Samoa Association of Women Graduates, National Council of Women, Samoa Women’s Development Committee, Samoa Alamai Group, and the National Human Rights Institution. However there still is a need to develop courses within the University and school curriculum on human rights.

28. The consultations that were carried out for the SHRR with 7 schools, University and the National Youth Council Members last year helped identified human rights issues not only for the purpose of the report but it assisted in the planning process of human rights education and training in schools for Samoa. These consultations explored the views, knowledge and understanding of children and young people of Samoa of human rights. It clearly confirmed the need for human rights education and training to help address the misconceptions of human rights amongst children and young people.

29. This year will kick start the “My Rights Friendly School Program” for Samoa as part of the human rights activities work plan. The Program will consist of human rights education activities targeting students of 3 schools covered in the previous consultations. The program aims to eventually cover all schools that were involved in the report consultations and extend to cover all schools in Samoa pending available resources and office capacity. The idea of this program is not only tackling human rights education for students but also aims to extend human rights education for teachers, parents and school committees to further enhance the effectiveness of the program and further promote better understanding of school communities of the value of understanding and application of human rights in school environment. The program will also include various activities which include the Schools MOCK UPR competition which will be carried out in cooperation with OHCHR to raise students understanding of UPR and what it entails particularly as Samoa will be reviewed by the UPR committee this year. It is hoped that the activities for the My Rights Friendly School Program will be carried out in cooperation with different organisations both international and local to encourage a variety of knowledge and resources.

30. Basic Human Rights Education for Police Recruits which started last year in cooperation with UNWOMEN and we will be continuing this same training this year to provide police recruits better understanding of human rights which will help them better perform their jobs to protect and uphold the rights of the public. This year human rights education training will be done alongside the promotion of the role of the office in public sector.

31. The community and the Samoa National Council of Churches can play a stronger role towards transforming negative public perceptions towards the acceptance and practice of women's human rights and ending domestic violence. The Ministry of Women, Community & Social Development and Ministry of Police continue to conduct outreach programs in the villages in collaboration with NGOs under the frame of the CEDAW Partnership Committee.

IV. Action taken since last UPR

A. Establishment of a National Human Rights Institution (NHRI)

32. In 2013 an NHRI was established within the existing Office of the Ombudsman as a result of recommendations made during Samoa's first UPR. The Ombudsman Act 2013 mandates the NHRI with monitoring, promoting and protecting human rights in Samoa.

33. The Asia Pacific Forum of NHRIs worked jointly with the Office of the Ombudsman and the Attorney General's Office to ensure the establishment of a Paris Principles compliant National Human Rights Institution and the Office submitted its application for accreditation to the International Coordinating Committee in January 2016.

34. The NHRI is fully functional and consists of the Ombudsman as the Human Rights Commissioner, an Advisory Council (12) and four (4) staff and growing.

35. Since its establishment the NHRI has undertaken a range of work including human rights training of law enforcement officials, inspections of places of detention, education and outreach activities and produced a comprehensive state of human rights report.

B. Justice and law reforms

Community Law Centre

36. The Government passed the 2015 Community Law Centre Act 2015 (assented by the Head of State on 9 July 2015 and to come into force on a date nominated by the Minister) establishing a Community Law Centre. This Centre is to be headed by a Public Advocate who provides legal assistance to people who cannot afford a private lawyer. This is a great milestone for the legal profession to ensure equal access of justice for the people of Samoa.

37. The Centre provides legal assistance on criminal and civil matters and to qualify an individual has to satisfy certain prescribed requirements. The prescribed requirements must comply with the following:

- Cover persons who cannot financially afford lawyers to represent them in courts;
- For criminal cases, to take into account the number of previous convictions of applicants for legal assistance;
- Deal with matters relating to ascertaining the financial affordability of a lawyer by the applicant; and
- Deal with any other prescribed requirements for legal assistance.

38. The Centre is currently under the process of establishment as a prioritised activity under the Law and Justice Sector Plan. However, legal aid services are currently provided by MJCA. Statistics from the year 2013–2014 illustrate that 80% of people are unrepresented in court (MJCA). The idea behind setting up the Centre is to provide more basic legal services available to the public on a pro bono basis and it is the aim that once it is established this percentage is minimised, and more people are afforded equal access to justice.

Special Investigations Unit

39. In addition to establishing the NHRI, the Ombudsman Act 2013 provided for the establishment of a ‘Special Investigations Unit’ (SIU) to independently monitor and investigate complaints against the police and other prescribed forces. The Ombudsman (Special Investigations Unit) Regulations 2015 have been approved by Cabinet and are awaiting signature by the Head of State. A Director of Good Governance and the Special Investigations Unit and Investigations Officer are currently being recruited and the SIU will be functioning by the time of the UPR Review.

Anti-Corruption Commission

40. Improving public sector integrity is one of the key goals of the Public Administration Sector Plan 2014–2018 that has been developed by PSC and accordingly there is current work towards the establishment of an independent anti-corruption commission.

41. One of the key activities under the third goal for the Plan is a scoping study to determine whether there is a need to establish an independent Anti-Corruption Agency in Samoa. A consensus was reached at the first review of the Public Administration Sector Plan 2014–2018 to establish an Integrity Commission instead of the aforementioned Agency.

42. The Public Administration Sector anticipates that initial discussions on the feasibility of such a body between relevant Government agencies such as the Office of the Ombudsman, the Office of the Attorney General and the Public Service Commission would be underway in late 2016.

43. The Sector intends to solicit technical assistance from Samoa's development partners to inform the design and structure of the Commission, should Cabinet approve of a proposal for its establishment.

44. One of the functions of the Ombudsman Act is to promote public awareness of human rights and efforts to combat all forms of discrimination or corruption through the provision of information and education.

45. The Crimes Act 2013 criminalizes judicial corruption, bribery of judicial officers, corruption and bribery of Ministers of the Government of Samoa, corruption and bribery of law enforcement officers, corruption and bribery of officials and corrupt use of official information.

46. In terms of development cooperation, all of Samoa's development partners sign financing agreements with the Government of Samoa which include anti-corruption and anti-fraud provisions.

C. Women

(Recommendations 73.13-73.14, 73.29-73.32, 74.1-74.3, 74.8, 74.10-74.11, 74.15, 74.18, 74.28, 75.31)

Family Safety Act

47. During the 2011 UPR the Family Safety Act 2013 was still a Bill, however, since then it has been passed and is now enforced. The Family Safety Act 2013 provides for the protection of women and children from domestic violence.

48. A Specialist Family Violence Court has been set up to deal with family violence issues and child protection. A related development has been the establishment of the Alcohol and Drugs Court in 2015 which looks at a system by which the court provides rehabilitation services for offenders. Statistics indicate that gender based violence is associated with alcohol consumption.

49. Since the last report, national efforts such as 16 Days of Activism on the Elimination of Violence against Women, White Ribbon Day and National Human Rights Day, International Day for Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect are some of the major campaigns that are coordinated jointly by Government, NGOs and community based organisations. There has been an increase in the engagement of village communities to address violence within the village, where women and untitled men's groups have initiated village violence free advocacy campaigns.

50. The recent work by the National Council of Women on working with women's committees and village women representatives is also complementing the ongoing efforts at national level to increase village and individual responsibility towards ending gender based violence.

CEDAW Compliance

51. The Samoa Law Reform Commission is leading the CEDAW legislative Compliance Review with public consultations recently completed under the oversight of the MWCSO. The Samoa Victim Support Group have been instrumental in raising awareness programs and assisting women and children in getting court orders against men who perpetuate domestic violence against women. The enactment of the Family Safety Act and the Family Court Act are contributing to this fight against discrimination and the protection of the rights of women.

52. MWCSO through their partnership with SPC RRRT have supported awareness raising trainings for village representatives and for Police Officers. Specific training for Police Officers have focused on understanding, enforcing with due diligence, care and being gender sensitive and caring in the delivery of their roles as outlined under the Family Safety Act.

53. The National Policy for Women 2010–2015 was endorsed by Cabinet in 2010 and is currently under review with independent technical support from the Secretariat of the Pacific Community. One of the key policy outcomes includes ‘increasing women’s participation in public life and decision making’. The policy identified as one of its main activities the support for increasing women’s participation in political and public life. The review upon finalization will set the priorities for the development of the new Gender and Women’s policy for the next 5 years as well as a program for implementation.

54. Resources mobilised through the Samoa Women Shaping Development Program funded by the Government of Australia and UNDP/UN Women as part of Government’s strategy to increase the civic participation of women. Some of the milestones achieved to date include:

(a) Voter Education Programs and Good Governance & Leadership Community Conversations Advocacy programs carried out by OEC in partnership with major women’s groups operating at the community level such as the National Council of Women, Samoa Development Committee Alamai and Samoa Umbrella for Non-Government Organisations, supported by UN Women/UNDP & MWCSO;

(b) Youth & Women’s Mock Parliament implemented by Office of the Legislative Assembly in partnership with UNDP;

(c) Women’s Political Caucus workshops and media outreach conducted by Samoa Alamai and supported by development partners (UN Women/UNDP/US Embassy) under the different Memoranda of agreements facilitated through the different bilateral programs between Government and its donor partners;

(d) Good Governance Programs spearheaded by the MWCSO where village by-laws are developed based on good governance principles. Women and young people’s participation in developing their village by laws alongside the village council is evidence of practicing good governance principles.

Marital Rape

55. The Crimes Act 2013 of Samoa criminalizes rape within marriage. Section 49 (4) states that a person may be convicted of sexual violation in respect of sexual connection with another person notwithstanding that those persons were married to each other at the time of that sexual connection.

56. Section 52 of the Crimes Act 2013 provides that a person who commits rape is liable for life imprisonment and a person who commits unlawful sexual connection is liable to imprisonment for a term not more than 14 years.

D. Children

Education

57. Section 23 of the Education Act 2009 prohibits corporal punishment in schools and is to be used as a police to discipline students.

58. Key recommendations relating to the education sector were implemented. Infrastructure improvements remains a priority, issues on access to education for persons with disabilities, accessible schools and appropriate equipment and information provided in accessible formats. Inclusive education is a priority and something that is slowly being implemented in schools from the primary to tertiary level. Other programs implemented include early childhood education; however, resources remain a key barrier. Compulsory education is still being promoted and mandatory by law (Compulsory Education Act 2009) with penalties for parents who fail to send children to school in accordance with the law.

59. Compulsory Education is one of the provisions of the Education Act 2009 that is stipulate under Part II, Division 4, number 20, as Employment of compulsory school-aged child. The provision aims to engage the compulsory aged-child throughout the school hours in school rather than being involved in street trading during school hours.

60. In enforcing and encouraging this provision, there are various interventions put into operation to ensure increased access to education for compulsory aged-children in Samoa. The following are some of the interventions that contribute to increased access to education or the rights to education.

61. The Samoa School Fees Grant Scheme (SSFGS) is a strategy by the Government of Samoa and supported by the Government of Australia and New Zealand initially to offset some of the impacts of the global recession on the people of Samoa. It is also a means to enhance the accessibility of basic school education by all children of Samoa from Year 1 to Year 11, with the aim for Samoa to achieve universal free and compulsory education by the year 2015 under MDG 3. The SSFGS provides schools with funds to help them meet the Minimum Service Standards (MSS) thus improving Learning and Teaching. All schools except for private schools for both primary and secondary levels are eligible to receive funding under the Samoa School Fees Grant Scheme.

62. The fourth year of the scheme following a mid-term review recorded numerous achievements and benefits at the school and district levels that contribute to the Government's effort to improve the quality of education for primary school students. Some of the significant achievements made include:

- Steady increase in enrolled students despite fluctuations from year to year;
- Progressive rate in all year levels besides Year 8 to Year 9 and Year 1 to 2 is above 94%, indicating a sound internal efficiency of the education system at these year levels;
- Primary drop-out rates have been low over recent years, except for 2010–2011. Drop-out in all year levels besides Year 1 to 2 and Year 8 to 9 have a lower proportion of students leaving school before completing the school year;
- 198 students were recorded to have attended schools for the first time in their lives since the commencement of the scheme. Of this number, 60% were those who attended schools because they were not required to pay any fee, although they are still required to pay a much lesser fee for registration.

63. The Compulsory Education Spot Check Patrol program is a joint strategy between MESC and the Ministry of Police to be conducted in the beginning of every academic year. This initiative is part of the many efforts carried out to enforce the Compulsory Education provision of the legislation. The ultimate objective of conducting spot checks are to ensure that every child between the ages of 5–14 attend School during school hours and school days instead of spending time on the street as street vendors or other reasons. It also ensures parents prioritize their children's education over other things. The program is part of a continuous effort to enforce the Education Act 2009 since its enactment in 2010. The Spot Check program is ongoing and is normally conducted at the beginning of each school term in January, April, June and September.

64. An annual Government grant of $6 million is distributed to all education providers outside Government who contribute in developing the education system in Samoa. These include Mission Schools, Private Schools, Special Needs Schools, Early Childhood Education Schools and National Council of Early Childhood Education for Samoa (NCECES). The Ministry of Education, Sports and Culture was tasked under the directive from Cabinet to allocate this grant appropriately, the premise usually being the school rolls.

65. The Government of Samoa funds the procurement of stationery for all Year 1 up to Year 13 students. The stationery is under the management and control of the MESC, and are distributed to all Government schools before school starts every year. Other schools such as Missions, Private, ECE and Special Needs may also receive free supplies of stationeries upon requests to the Ministry of Education, Sports and Culture.

66. The Minimum Service Standards (MSS) for both Schools and Early Childhood Education (ECE) are all in place to ensure and encourage school improvement from year to year.

67. An allocation of 7.5% of the $6 million grant from the Government is allocated to ECE from year to year to support education at this level. The ECE policy and its MSS documents are in place to guide and lead the smooth implementation of ECE in Samoa.

68. Samoa received a recommendation to lift the reservation made to article 28 paragraph 1 (a) of the CRC. Although Samoa noted this recommendation, it has taken a step towards implementing free education in Samoa. Today, education is free for all Government primary schools (not affecting private schools who operate on a school fee paying scheme).

Children with disabilities

69. The Inclusive Education Policy 2014 recently approved by Cabinet focuses on improving educational opportunities and outcomes for young children and students with disabilities during early childhood, school, and post-school sub-sectors.

70. The Samoa Inclusive Education Demonstration Program was an initiative implemented in 2010, to support and strengthen Inclusive Education [Special Needs] which was firstly introduced in 2009.

71. The program is funded under the Samoa-Australia Partnership and is to be implemented over a five year period. The program demonstrated a model of service provision for girls and boys with disability for inclusive education, which could be sustained and supported by the Government of Samoa in its future program development.

72. One of the early deliverables include greater access, retention, progression, and gradual integration into the regular school system for both girls and boys with disability, in rural and urban areas in Samoa. Two NGOs namely SENESE and Loto Taumafai assisted in the implementation of this program. One of the milestones recorded is that 277 children with disabilities now have access to school in Samoa or early intervention services in Samoa. This is an increase from 134 as recorded in 2009.

73. The plan is for the MESC to take full ownership and management of inclusive education services by 2016.

Child labour

74. In relation to eliminating child labour the 1972 Labour and Employment Act was reviewed. The newly enacted labour law regulates the employment of children. Section 51 of the Labour and Employment Relations Act 2013 states that no person must employ a child under the age of 15 except in a safe and light work suited to the child's capacity, or a child under 18 years on dangerous machinery or in any other working place or condition injurious to the physical or moral health of the child, or a child under 15 years on a vessel unless such vessel is under the personal charge of the parent or guardian of the child.

75. In addition, recent reforms include revisiting the definition of 'light work' in relation to children's employment to ensure that what constitutes child labour is tailored towards the local context and within a particular setting or context. Joint efforts by MCIL, National Workers Congress, and members of a newly set up Child Labour Taskforce have started in an attempt to implement basic strategies to address issues of children involved in vendor services' particularly during school hours.

76. MESC through their Compulsory Education Taskforce enforces compulsory education particularly with a focus on child vendors.

77. The MWCSO Child Care and Protection Bill states provisions for ensuring protective mechanisms for children selling goods in public settings which has been raised as a public safety issue.

Justice

78. The Young Offenders Act 2007 sets the minimum age of criminal responsibility at 10 years of age. However, the new Sentencing Bill 2015 and Criminal Procedure Bill 2015 provides for a child to be a person under the age of 18 years to comply with requirements under the CRC. There have been discussions to amend the Young Offenders Act 2007 to align with these new changes and to comply with requirements under the CRC.

79. The current minimum age for criminal liability is provided in section 3 of the Crimes Act 2013 which states that no person under the age of 10 years is to be charged with any criminal offence. Section 5 of the Young Offenders Act 2007 provides that any criminal charge brought against a "young person" must be laid in the Youth Court whereby "young person" is defined in the Act as any person of or over the age of 10 years and under the age of 17 years. On that note, a person charged with an offence that is 17 years and above is dealt with in the District or Supreme Court as an adult.

80. There have been discussions on equalizing the legal minimum age of marriage for girls and boys to comply with CRC. The necessary changes will be made to the relevant legislation. The current minimum age of marriage is 18 years old for a male and 16 years old for a female as per section 9 of the Marriage Ordinance 1961 of Samoa. This will soon be changed to equalize the legal minimum age of marriage for both male and female to 18 years old.

81. Section 157 of Samoa's Crime Act 2013 provides that a person who deals with persons under the age of 18 years for sexual exploitation, removal of body parts or engagement in forced labour is liable for an imprisonment term not exceeding 14 years.

82. Section 72 criminalizes a person who has a sexual intercourse or sexual connection, or agrees, or offers to have sexual intercourse or sexual connection with another person for gain or reward. This covers all persons including children. Furthermore, section 74 makes a person who is living on earnings of prostitution liable to imprisonment.

83. Section 58 specifically provides protections of children and young person from sexual conduct i.e. sexual connection or attempts to have sexual connection with a child an offence, whereby a child means a person under the age of 12 years. Section 59 makes sexual connection or attempts to have sexual connection with a young person less than 16 years of age an offence. A young person means a person who is 12 years or over and under the age of 16 years. Section 218 makes it an offence for any person to carry out any act of solicitation of children.

84. Under section 82 of the Crimes Act 2013 it provides that production, publication, distribution or exhibition of indecent material on a child or on a child through an electronic system is an offence and is liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven (7) years.

85. Section 9 of the Infant Ordinance 1961, provides that it is unlawful for a person to give or receive or agree to give or receive any payment or reward in consideration of the making of arrangement for adoption or proposed adoption.

E. Non-discrimination and gender equality

(Recommendations 73.14, 73.30, 74.30, 75.29–75.31)

Female representation in Parliament

86. Following the first review a significant constitutional amendment was made in 2013 where a 10% quota was introduced to reserve five (5) seats for women in parliament. This is another step towards achieving gender equality for women in the political arena as well as towards compliance with CEDAW. This constitutional guarantee will be implemented in March 2016 when Samoa enters elections.

Employment

87. The Public Service Commission (PSC) in its Public Service Act 2004 and Policies (Working Conditions and Entitlements Manual - WCE) advocates for equal employment opportunity for both females and males. Under the current WCE manual, women are entitled to 2 months maternity leave with pay and they can take up to 26 weeks without pay.

88. Recently, PSC has reviewed its policy to be in-line with the International Labour Organisation (ILO) and the Convention Eliminating Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW) to increase the maternity leave entitlement to 3 months with pay and 3 and a half months without pay. The revised maternity leave policy also recognizes for the first time, stillborn babies, miscarriages and legal adoption of newborn babies and those up to 12 months. Female employees will be entitled to 4 weeks with pay and up to 26 weeks without pay. Male employees in the public service are entitled to 5 days Paternity Leave.

89. The Recruitment and Selection Process in the public service is based on the four merit factors which are Personal Attributes, Skills and Abilities, Experience and Qualification. Selection is not based on gender. Statistics show that for Government ministries there are 13 male CEOs and 5 females and at ACEO level there are 52 males and 73 females. For Government corporations, 50% of CEOs are females.

90. PSC also has a grievance process whereby an employee can lodge a grievance against unfair treatment, harassment etc. PSC is also currently working on developing a Workplace Harassment Policy for the Public Sector.

91. PSC also has a managing breaches of the Code of Conduct to deal/or handle grievances that will result in the breach of the Code of Conduct under the PS Act 2004.

92. The Public Service Salary Scale is based on the work value and not on the person doing the job. Thus, the whole Public Service follows a Unified Public Sector Salary Scale where salary is based on the value (duties and responsibilities) of the job regardless if the employee filling the position is a male or female.

93. The Labour and Employment Relations Act 2013 (LERA) protects and promotes women's rights in employment, equal remuneration, maternity leave (public and private sector although the period of leave varies) and protection from workplace harassment, there is a need to regulate the private sector to ensure they comply with the universal standards.

94. Samoa was recommended to implement inclusion measures that ensure access for people with disabilities to better employment opportunities. Further to Section 37 of the LERA 2013, the Labour and Employment Relations Regulations 2015 were developed and endorsed by Cabinet to effectively implement the principle Act. The Regulations 2015 sets out privileges in addition to the entitlements set out in the principle Act such as medical costs and provision of modified facilities.

95. Public sectors working conditions and entitlements, recruitment and selection procedures, are accommodative to persons with disabilities. Similarly, employment and vocational training programs offered by the commerce and education sectors do not exclude persons with disabilities. Samoa's obligations in joining the ILO under the Decent Country Work Program include promotion of decent employment opportunities, particularly for the youth, and inclusive of persons with disabilities.

96. The Samoa Qualifications Authority Post-Secondary School Access Grant for PSET providers, is designed to improved access to education and training for women, people with disability or those vulnerable in the labour market. The Tertiary Vocational Education and Training Support program is funded by Australia, and began in 2011. Its main objective is to 'increase employability of Samoan women and men, including those with disability, by ensuring the employment readiness of TVET graduates in areas of labour demand as measured by student outcomes and levels of employer satisfaction.'

97. Several NGOs provide key services and credit schemes aimed at reducing poverty, strengthening life skills, and increasing opportunities for independent living, for persons with disabilities and with a focus on women entrepreneurs. These organisations include the South Pacific Business Development program, Women in Business, Loto Taumafai, Aoga Fiamalamalama and SENESE.

F. Prohibition of torture and cruel, degrading treatment

(Recommendations 75.32–75.35)

98. Under the Ombudsman Act 2013, the Office of the Ombudsman/NHRI has the mandate to inspect all places of detention in Samoa. The Office has carried out a number of inspections to date, resulting in reports containing recommendations which are in the process of being considered and implemented.

99. The Office of the Ombudsman conducts regular periodic reviews of the Professional Standards Unit (PSU) and as a result the timeliness of its work has improved considerably.

The newly established SIU will monitor all PSU cases, providing even greater oversight of the timeliness of investigations.

100. The Samoa Prisons and Corrections Services at this stage, is to ensure feedback is provided responsively to make sure needs are met at the national and program levels. The Office of the Ombudsman has been and still is continuously working hand in hand with the SPCS on certain and specified areas that are of much concern at this stage; as such, the need to meet universal human, safe and secure rights of prisoners whilst they are being held in custody. However, in light of the current situation, it is quite complicated to match or rather measure; at this point, we continue to put into action our very best to realize and enables us to meet on the job daily demands; the execution of the customary values and traditions good practice has been of great and appropriate help in managing prisoners.

101. Although it is very complex to provide some basic living provisions as stressed out in some of the International Standards, the Samoa Prisons Act 2013 and the Prisons Regulation 2014 are national directives which set out the strategic direction of the work of the SPCS.

102. Guiding principles under the Prisons Act 2013 comprehensively highlight that – when interpreting or applying a provision of this Act and when carrying out duty, power or function, all persons must:

(a) Ensure that prisons are managed in accordance with Samoan tradition, culture and community values, and in such a manner as will facilitate the return to ordinary life in the Samoan community of a prisoner when released from prison;

(b) Ensure that full regard is had to the recognized international standards and obligations relating to the treatment of prisoners (and in particular those stated in any international Convention to which Samoa is a Party and in the Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners); and

(c) Apply to the fullest extent possible the rights and obligations of CEDAW and CRC in the administration of Samoa's prisons and the treatment of prisoners.

103. SPCS as it has been in the past and still is relying and executing the core values and traditions of the Samoan culture to manage prisoners while we continue to face the problem of staff shortage; however, slight changes have occurred since its separation from Police in terms of its recruitment and selection process, technical capacity (Trainers & Program Coordinators, Human Resource, Accounts people, Information Technology, Policy & Planning and the assistance from the NZ Corrections) has been brought on board considering the strategic direction of the Service in the years to come.

104. Prisoners' participation in the Ola Toe Fuataina Choir is on a voluntary basis. They are not forced to join. In fact SPCS has reduced the number of choir members down to a manageable level for security, safety and transportation purposes.

105. Prisoners are made aware of the complaint system process; they are to submit their complaints to the Office of the Commissioner to ensure each grievance is properly dealt with; each prisoner is called in to discuss their complaints.

106. The proposed new prison facility at Tanumalala has a separate dwelling to accommodate pregnant women prisoners, as well as women prisoners who wish to take care of their children for up to a year. The current situation in terms of capital cannot completely cater for new facilities or extensions at the Tafaigata Prison alone.

107. Female prisoners are separated from male prisoners. The housing of a female prisoner in a male cell was a one off practice due to the unavailability of a proper locked up cell at the Female prison for the safety and security of the concerned female prisoner when the incident occurred. This was a temporary measure while work was carried out to repair the female custody cell and at all times, the female prisoner was securely locked and well separated from male prisoners.

108. Rehabilitation, educational and vocational activities programs will be rolled out from February 2016.

109. The Development Service Unit is yet to trial a series of rehabilitation programs for prisoners this year 2016. Programs will begin in February and we also have the assistance of Government ministries and NGOs who will assist us with the implementation of these programs. Programs are designed to prepare prisoner's transition back into the community. This is to ensure that they are ready to resume a normal life and normal work as expected by the wider community following their re-introduction into the community.

110. Human Trafficking is treated seriously in Samoa, the Samoa's Crime Act 2013 create a separate offence on human trafficking with high penalties of a term of imprisonment not exceeding 14 years.

G. Right to an adequate standard of living

(Recommendations 73.29, 73.37, 74.19, 74.31)

111. Sexual reproductive health awareness programs are coordinated and managed by the health sector. A clinic at the NUS Faculty of Applied Science allows for the provision of counselling for female NUS students and provides reproductive health checks and free contraception.

112. The Ministry of Health (MoH) is committed to ensuring the health of all people regardless of ethnicity, status, disability or gender, and in keeping with its vision of a "Healthy Samoa" formulated national policies, strategies and programmes for Sexual Reproductive Health. Policies include: National Sexual and Reproductive Health Policy 2011-2016; National HIV and AIDS Policy 2011-2016; National Health Prevention Policy 2013-2018; National Infection Control Policy 2011-2016; Health Promotion Policy 2010-2015; Child and Adolescent Policy 2013-2018; National Non-communicable Disease Policy 2010-2015; Samoa's Climate adaptation Strategy for Health (CASH), and the National Food and Nutrition Policy 2013-2018.

113. The Government of Samoa has adopted and is committed to the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals in order to improve human development for now and into the future. Several of these goals have particular relevance to sexual and reproductive health but specifically SDG 3 – Good Health and Well-Being. There is also commitment to the S.A.M.O.A Pathway: Section 75 Health and Non-communicable diseases (a) (b) (f) (g); Section 76 Gender Equality and Women Empowerment (g) and, the Apia Outcome.

114. The National Sexual Reproductive Health Policy contributes to the improvement of reproductive health status of the people of Samoa, particularly women and children, by listing some of the major challenges in the area of sexual and reproductive health and identifying Key Strategic areas to address immediate and future actions. The vision of the policy is "Ensuring a Safe Sexual and Reproductive Health Environment for all Samoans".

115. Indicators for Sexual and Reproductive Health have shown an improvement over the last decade. Life expectancy for Samoans is gradually increasing with females (75.6) living longer than males (72.7). The Total Fertility Rate rose slightly between 2006 and 2011. Births to adolescent mothers showed an overall decline from 2001 to 2011. The contraceptive prevalence rate is under 25% while the 2009 Demographic Health survey indicated that there are 44% of women who have an unmet need for family planning. This indicates women (married or in a consensual union) who are fecund and sexually active but do not use any method of contraception yet want to avoid or delay pregnancy. The high teenage fertility rates indicate there is likely high unmet need for family planning.

116. Improvements have been seen with the availability of Information Packages to all pregnant mothers during their first antenatal clinic visits. These include counselling on STI symptoms, information on contraceptives for family planning, sexual relationships with partners, and protective contraceptive for unborn babies and mothers. HIV and AIDS screening is free of charge at the National Health Services.

117. Similarly, a Guideline for Traditional Birth Attendants (TBA) has been developed and implemented to regulate traditional birth attendants. The Guidelines is used to monitor and ensure Birth Attendants understand their roles and responsibilities when delivering and or offering their services to ensure the safety of mother and baby.

H. Environment, climate change and disaster risk reduction

118. Samoa is party to the Convention on Biological Diversity and has ratified and started implementation of the Nagoya Protocol on Access to Genetic Resources and the Fair and Equitable Sharing of Benefits Arising from their Utilization to the Convention on Biological Diversity, while acknowledging the role of access and benefit-sharing arising from the utilization of genetic resources in contributing to the conservation and sustainable use of biological diversity, poverty eradication and sustainable development. There is promotion of organic production of locally grown products in order to attract niche markets.

119. Samoa continues to address obstacles and pursue opportunities to mobilize financing from all sources to support national sustainable forest management policies and improve the state of biological diversity by conserving and safeguarding ecosystems, species and genetic diversity. The introduction of safeguard policies has meant that there are no trade-offs between development and environment. This has led to the increasing number of land areas designated as reserves.

120. Samoa has been pursuing effective reforestation, restoration and afforestation programs and continues to address obstacles and pursue opportunities to mobilize financing from all sources to support national sustainable forest management policies and improve the state of biological diversity by conserving and safeguarding ecosystems, species and genetic diversity. As well it continues to uphold the importance of engaging a broad range of stakeholders at the national and local levels, including national Government, the scientific community, private businesses and civil society and also including youth and persons with disabilities, and that gender equality and the effective participation of women and indigenous peoples are important for effective action on all aspects of climate change.

121. A number of programs funded by a number of climate financing facilities, have been designed to build resilience to the impacts of climate change and improve adaptive capacity through the design and implementation of climate change adaptation measures appropriate to their respective vulnerabilities and economic, environmental and social situations; as well as raise awareness of climate change risks including through public dialogues with local communities to increase human and environmental resilience to the longer-term impacts of climate change.

122. Samoa is able to access technical assistance and financing for early warning systems, disaster risk reduction, and post-disaster response and post-disaster recovery, risk assessment and data, land use and planning, observation equipment, disaster preparedness and recovery education programs, including inter alia under the Global Framework for Climate Services, and disaster risk management. Through the NDMO, focus is on strengthening and supporting contingency planning and provisions for disaster preparedness and response, emergency relief and population evacuation, in particular for people in vulnerable situations, including inter alia women and girls, displaced persons, children, older persons and people with disabilities.

123. Similarly the implementation of the Sendai Framework for disaster risk reduction post 2015 builds on previous achievements, prioritizes prevention and mitigation, and incorporates implementation frameworks to address implementation gaps if and when they exist.

I. Treaty ratification and cooperation with UN human rights mechanisms

(Recommendations 73.1–73.12, 73.26–73.28, 75.8–75.12)

124. The Government has made it an obligation to ensure that it ratifies all core human rights conventions to safeguard the rights of its citizens and it has therefore accepted the corresponding recommendations.

125. Samoa is considering ratifying CRPD. The Attorney General's Office has provided advice for Samoa to ratify following a legislative compliance review of CRPD. Samoa is working towards finalising the legislative compliance review so that Government is able to establish legal frameworks that will support full implementation of the Convention. Following this, the Convention will be ratified. Lack of technical expertise in this area is a problem although other Ministries and NGOs provided technical support towards completing the compliance. Samoa is looking at legal options towards protecting the rights of persons with disabilities whether in the form of a model law or piecemeal amendments.

126. Since signing the CRPD, Samoa is currently undertaking a cost benefit analysis of CRPD and a legislative compliance review of CRPD. MWCSO is the focal point for CRPD. The challenge for Samoa is ensuring the accessibility in all public places, infrastructure (disability friendly facilities at the correctional facilities) and representation in public forums, steering committees, delegations to overseas meetings.

127. Efforts to sensitise the public and promote human rights for persons with disabilities, have existed since the 70s, through training programs and literature produced by the civil society. In 2001 Nuanua o le Alofa was established as the official DPO and NGO focal point. The national disability task force was set up in 2008. Advocacy continues for the development of a disability legislation, the realisation of accessible buildings, facilities, programs and transport systems, and the inclusion / participation of persons with disability in social environments that are devoid of stigma and discrimination.

128. Mainstreaming of disability rights has been recognised as a national planning priority since 2008 (Strategy for the Development of Samoa). Since 2015 an annual budget allocation has been set aside by Government for the commemoration of International Disability Week.

129. The establishment of the National Disability Taskforce in 2008 is a reflection of Government's commitment to incorporating disability issues into national and sector plans. The aim of the Taskforce is to draw the discussion in Samoa towards recognising that people with disabilities should be empowered, their rights recognised and that they should be included in the mainstream of civil, political, social, cultural and economic life.

130. In 2008 Cabinet directed the Taskforce to conduct: a) a CRPD legislation compliance review and b) a CRPD costed plan analysis, as a means of informing steps towards future CRPD ratification. The Disability Taskforce currently serves as a subsector within the overall Community Sector, and reports to the Community Sector Steering Committee. It is responsible for monitoring the Samoa Disability Program, an Australia funded project which has been housed within the MWCSO since 2013. The Samoa

Disability Program is designed to facilitate Samoa's ratification of the CRPD through the introduction of activities and initiatives that address vulnerabilities, lack of economic opportunities and limited access to such opportunities.

131. A review of the initial policy 2011–2015 was conducted in December 2014. The review found that policy mainstreaming has improved over the past 5 years, with disability sensitive frameworks having been developed within the education, health and communications sectors, and disaster management services. Successful inroads have been made in awareness capacity, sports, intervention services, and national statistics, enabled by donor commitment and an evolved partnership between the Government and civil society. However, continued vulnerability of women with disabilities, lack of economic opportunities and accessibility challenges, continue to hinder progress. Rural inclusive education and early childhood education are areas that are particularly affected by limited resources and facilities. Key factors to be used as stepping stones include a stronger mainstream approach, responsive laws, collective ownership and coordination, capacity building, and emphasis on community impact. A draft policy for the 2016–2020 period is currently being finalized.

132. Enforcement of accessibility is difficult not only because of the lack of a sound legislative framework, but because of the haphazard and fragmented manner in which accessibility policies / guidelines have been drawn up. The MWTI began reviewing the 1992 National Building Code in 2013, in an attempt to merge the objectives and outcomes of the building components within various existing documents that cover building accessibility, such as the Samoa Water Act, the PUMA Accessibility Guideline, and so forth, to encompass all building concerns within a uniform structure. All public buildings at least, have enforced provisions to facilitate access for people with disability.

133. The communications sector currently has a strong policy base around disability access to ICT, however monitoring and review is required.

134. The recent completion of a CRPD legislative compliance review spells promise for the drafting of disability legislation around access in the near future. Such a legislation will help realise and enforce access related measures in several existing frameworks (Public Parking Policy, imposition of appropriate fines for non-compliance; Transport Sector Plan, safety and security in all ports and airports), and help establish guidelines for areas where such measures do not exist (disability ID card schemes).

135. In terms of recommendation for Samoa to ratify the two current Optional Protocols thereto, on the involvement of children in armed conflict (2000) and on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography (2000) to the CRC, the protocols were reviewed by the Attorney General. The Office of the Attorney General has advised the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade in its letter dated 24 September 2013 that Samoa can sign the Optional Protocol on the Convention of the Rights on the Child (OPCRC). The Attorney General's Office advised that since Samoa does not have any armed forces, Samoa complies with this obligation under the Convention.

136. In terms of periodic human rights reporting in particular the UPR, CEDAW, and CRC, Samoa where necessary, has continued to utilize both technical and financial assistance from UNICEF Pacific, Pacific Island Forum Secretariat, Secretariat of the Pacific Community, UN Women and support from the Government of Australia through the Samoa Shaping Development For Women (Pacific Women Shaping Development Regional Program). This assistance from the development and donor partners has been for both State and Shadow reports including support for public consultations.

137. Regular engagement with OHCHR in relation to treaty body reporting has occurred over the UPR reporting period. In 2015 OHCHR provided UPR training to both Government and Civil Society and the NHRI staff travelled to Suva in January 2016 to receive training on treaty body reporting.

138. Additionally, OHCHR has recruited a UPR coordinator, based in the Office of the Ombudsman, to support the UPR process and treaty body reporting. With the assistance of the UPR coordinator it is planned to establish a National Mechanism for Reporting and Follow-Up (NMRF) to coordinate all treaty body reporting and recommendation implementation. The intention is to establish the NMRF by the end of 2016.

139. Samoa is committed to the creation of a common core document and one of the first tasks of the National Mechanism for Reporting and Follow Up will be to produce this document, with the assistance of the OHCHR UPR Coordinator.

V. Challenges and constraints

140. Challenges include lack of resources and sometimes technical assistance in progressing some of the work that have been done so far especially with the legislative reforms and implementation of human rights.

141. There is also the challenge of competing priorities of not only Government and civil societies on what to prioritise and what not to prioritise with the many issues, programs and so forth that needs the immediate attention of not only Government but also civil societies. Furthermore, the issue of lack of awareness and understanding on certain human rights aspect and the limited financial resources to assist with implementation of laws and programs aimed at enhancing the status of human rights in Samoa.

142. There is still some way to go to ensure that there is deep understanding of what ‘a rights based’ approach is and what human rights are; how and when they can be applied. The rights-based approach deals not just with outcomes but also with how those outcomes are achieved. It recognizes that people are actors in their own development, rather than passive recipients of services. Informing, educating and empowering them are essential. Their participation is central, not only to ensure they have ownership over the programme, but also to sustain progress. A rights-based approach develops the capacity of duty-bearers to meet their obligations and encourages rights holders to claim their rights. Governments have three levels of obligation: to respect, protect and fulfil every right.

143. Increasingly through public debate, court cases where these principles are tested, advocacy programs for the human rights treaties Samoa is already party to, and public discussions on international reporting obligations of the country such as through this UPR Report, public awareness is growing.

VI. Key national priorities, initiatives and commitments

144. Samoa will continue to undertake reviews of its laws and policies to address the changing needs of its people and environment. These include gender equality, the enhancement of the rights of women and children, economic empowerment, law and order and access to justice. The Government is committed to working with development partners in ensuring that gender mainstreaming is filtered across the public service with identifiable best practices.

145. Priorities in the implementation of the national development policy include the SDS review to include SDGs, the creation of an environment conducive for economic growth and improved service delivery to the most marginalised communities.

146. Samoa recognises the need to efficiently monitor and evaluate human rights reporting (UPR and treaty body reporting) and improve inter-ministerial co-ordination of the process. Samoa is committed to the establishment of a NMRF housed in MFAT that will be responsible for the monitoring and evaluation of all human rights reporting. This will enable the submission of human rights reporting obligations through a consultative process in a timely manner.

147. Greater collaboration with the Parliament Foreign Relations Committee is envisaged so that human rights commitments are brought to the attention of legislators for their consideration and action.

VII. Capacity-building and requests for technical support

148. The Government identifies the need to develop a broad program on human rights which includes training and capacity-building for the public sector. Pivotal to human rights education is the need for regular, accurate statistics, monitoring and evaluation.

149. Samoa also recognises that there are new and emerging issues that relate to the climate change, environment/private sector and human rights which need to be addressed by strengthening the laws/policies and enforcement framework. Continued financial and technical assistance is requested to support national endeavours by aligning donor assistance to national priorities until such time that the country is technically capable of meeting its obligations.

VIII. Conclusion

150. Samoa has come a long way since its first UPR in 2011 and over the years there have been a number of not only legal reforms but also social reforms in terms of addressing recommendations provided during our first UPR. In order to closely monitor the 2nd cycle the Government is committed to submitting mid-term review reports to the Human Rights Council. Samoa also welcomes offers of technical assistance in key areas such as domestic violence, prisons, and strengthening the NHRI to name a few.

151. Samoa has much to be proud of in terms of goals and milestones achieved since its first UPR in 2011. The establishment of the new National Human Rights Institution, the number of legislative reforms completed to address recommendations made during the first UPR and the signing of the CRPD.

152. This is a reflection of Samoa's commitment to the UPR process to ensure that the different aspects of human rights are reflected in all areas spanning the Samoan Government.
