

National Human Rights Commission of Korea

Written Contribution

By National Human Rights Commission of Korea

For the 28th UPR Working Group Session for the review of the human rights situation in the ROK

March 2017

The National Human Rights Commission of the Republic of Korea (NHRCK) is an independent national human rights institution of the country which has been constantly holding an accredited 'A' status by the Global Alliance of National Human Rights Institutions since its establishment in 2001. This written contribution is to evaluate the implementation status of the recommendations made in the 2nd Universal Periodic Review (UPR) of the Republic of Korea (ROK) and to suggest recommendations for the 3rd UPR of the country and, at the same time, to come up with some key issues which were not dealt with during the session of the 2nd UPR.
