Introduction

1. The Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review, established in accordance with Human Rights Council resolution 5/1, held its twenty-eighth session from 6 November to 17th November 2017. The review of Czechia was held at the first meeting on 6 November 2017. The delegation of Czechia was headed by the Deputy Minister for Human Rights, Martina Štěpánková. At its tenth meeting held on 10 November 2017, the Working Group adopted the report on Czechia.
2. On 13 February 2017, the Human Rights Council selected the following group of rapporteurs (troika) to facilitate the review of Czechia: Brazil, Indonesia and Nigeria.
3. In accordance with paragraph 15 of the annex to Human Rights Council resolution 5/1 and paragraph 5 of the annex to Council resolution 16/21, the following documents were issued for the review of Czechia:
 - (a) A national report submitted/written presentation made in accordance with paragraph 15 (a) (A/HRC/WG.6/28/CZE/1);
 - (b) A compilation prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) in accordance with paragraph 15 (b) (A/HRC/WG.6/28/CZE/2);
 - (c) A summary prepared by OHCHR in accordance with paragraph 15 (c) (A/HRC/WG.6/28/CZE/3).
4. A list of questions prepared in advance by Belgium, Brazil, Germany, Norway, Portugal, Slovenia, Spain, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and Uruguay was transmitted to Czechia through the troika. These questions are available on the extranet of the UPR.

I. Summary of the proceedings of the review process

A. Presentation by the State under review

5. In her introductory statement, the Deputy Minister for Human Rights highlighted the contribution of Czechia to the success of the UPR through its efforts to implement the recommendations received during the previous cycle. She noted that the national report had been prepared through a transparent approach and coordinated by the Section for Human Rights at the Office of the Government. Government human rights advisory bodies served as a platform for authorities to meet with representatives of the civil society and academia, leading to recommendations on improvements on human rights issues being made to the Government. She highlighted that many measures had been undertaken to implement the 129 recommendations accepted at the previous cycle.
6. Czechia ratified almost all international human rights treaties it had committed to after the second review and is seeking ways to ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, the Optional Protocol to the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights and the International Labour Organization decent work for domestic workers Convention No. 189, and is preparing the legislative changes to ratify the Council of Europe Convention on preventing and combating violence against women and domestic violence. It is not planning to ratify the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families.
7. Czechia will considerably strengthen its implementation of the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities by entrusting the Ombudsperson with its independent monitoring as from January 2018. The Ombudsperson is an independent institution monitoring the human rights situation in the country and advising State authorities, the Government or the Parliament. A special strategy focusing on the implementation of the Convention is in place and also focuses on the employment of persons with disabilities.

8. The head of delegation noted the adoption of the amendment to the School Act, providing for inclusive education of all pupils with special needs, including Roma children with social disadvantages, and aiming at integrating all children within the mainstream education system.
9. In 2014, Czechia adopted a comprehensive Roma integration strategy setting benchmarks and goals in the areas of employment, housing, education, language and culture. The Government committed to solve the issue of Lety u Písku by replacing the pig farm on the site of the former Roma concentration camp with a memorial of the Roma holocaust. Another memorial is being created in Hodonín u Kunštátu.
10. The Deputy Minister noted that health care laws have been amended to prevent illegal sterilization of Roma women, and victims can claim damages through court action. In justified cases the court can waive the court fees or grant free legal assistance. A working group was established by the Government's Council for Roma minority affairs to explore options to offer psychological support to victims of past illegal sterilizations.
11. A comprehensive strategy on equality between women and men was adopted in 2014, and it addresses issues such as gender pay gap, work-life balance, balanced representation in decision-making positions, domestic violence, or gender stereotypes.
12. Concrete action plans were adopted to implement the Convention on the Rights of the Child, with the main objective to shift the care of children in need from institutions to families. The Deputy Minister underlined that a strong legal framework protects children against any kind of violence, including sexual violence.
13. A strategy was adopted to improve the situation in prisons and to ensure the social integration of detainees after their release and avoid recidivism.
14. With the migration crisis of 2015, detention facilities for foreigners were overcrowded but the situation improved with the opening of new facilities, including one for families with children.
15. Czechia continues to combat trafficking in human beings, including labour exploitation, through prevention and prosecution and the protection of, and assistance to victims.
16. The Deputy Minister indicated that a strong legal framework against racism and xenophobia is in place, allowing for prosecution for hate and racist crimes by law enforcement authorities and courts, and for protection of the victims. The fight against racism, hate crime and extremism is subject to annual Government strategies and evaluations. Negative attitudes and stereotypes however need to be tackled, and a specific campaign against racism, xenophobia and intolerance therefore started in 2015.
17. Regarding social housing, the head of delegation mentioned the 2015 strategy and that a bill on social housing had not been approved before the end of the Parliament term in 2017. Further efforts are needed in this area.
18. Last October, the country adopted its first national action plan on the activities of state institutions and businesses and the protection of human rights, in line with the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights.
19. To implement the Sustainable Development Goals Czechia adopted the comprehensive strategy "Czech Republic 2030".
20. The head of delegation further noted that human rights protection is a cornerstone of the Government's foreign policy: the Transition Promotion Programme funded projects up to 24 million Euros since its establishment in 2004, and the Government provided the Official Development Assistance with 225 million Euros in 2016. The Deputy Minister underlined Czechia's cooperation with international human rights mechanisms, including as an active member of the Human Rights Council and its engagement with the mechanisms, including through the submission of a UPR mid-term implementation report, standing invitation to the special procedures and cooperation with the treaty bodies. Czechia also financially contributes to the work of the OHCHR.

B. Interactive dialogue and responses by the State under review

21. During the interactive dialogue, 81 delegations made statements. Recommendations made during the dialogue are to be found in section II of the present report.
22. Slovenia commended the adoption of the National Plan of Action for Inclusive Education but expressed concern over the increase of the share of Roma children with mild mental disability from 28,4 percent in 2013/2014 school year to 30,9 percent in 2016/17.
23. Spain appreciated Czechia's commitment to gender equality. It was concerned that hate crimes are especially targeting the Roma community and that the sustainability of the penitentiary system was threatened by the deterioration of material conditions.
24. The State of Palestine, while noting efforts made to combat racial discrimination, remained concerned about acts of racially motivated violence and stereotypes. It welcomed the development of a national action on plan in accordance with the United Nations Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights.
25. Switzerland welcomed the efforts accomplished by Czechia in the area of inclusive education but remained concerned with the effective implementation of the reforms, especially of the programme aimed at combating discrimination in schools.
26. Thailand noted continuing efforts to combat hate crimes but was concerned with the prevalence of such crimes resulting from racial and xenophobic motives. Thailand was also concerned with violence against women and children.
27. Timor-Leste welcomed the Antidiscrimination Act and the adoption of the Roma Integration Strategy 2015–2020 to ensure equal access to education to Roma girls and boys. Timor-Leste also appreciated the preparation of a legal aid system to assist victims of discrimination.
28. Tunisia commended the ratification of numerous international instruments and took note of the national strategies that have been implemented to protect the rights of children and to combat trafficking in human beings.
29. Tukey welcomed the delegation and thanked them for their presentation.
30. Ukraine commended the high level of implementation of recommendations received during the second UPR cycle. It noted the adoption of strategies and action plans to safeguard human rights and that a significant number of international human rights instruments and been domesticated.
31. The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland welcomed the National Strategy for Combating Trafficking in Human Beings for 2016–2019 and the ratification of the 2014 Protocol to the Forced Labour Convention of 1930 and encouraged their full implementation.
32. The United States of America commended Czechia for its intention to properly commemorate the victims of the Lety concentration camp. It expressed concern about systematic discrimination faced by Roma in education, employment, housing and healthcare and by anti-Muslim and anti-migrant rhetoric.
33. Uruguay welcomed the ratification of the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance as well as efforts made to promote gender equality. It noted progress made on economic, social and cultural rights, including in the area of inclusive education.
34. Afghanistan noted achievements by Czechia, including amendments made to the Constitution as well as the Antidiscrimination Act. Afghanistan commended efforts aimed at combatting extremist ideology such as Neo-Nazism and other forms of intolerance.
35. Albania appreciated the continuing engagement of Czechia with different human rights organizations. Noting the importance of the ombudsperson, Albania encouraged Czechia to strengthen its institutional capacity.

36. Algeria welcomed the ratification of international human rights instruments and the adoption of several plans and policies related to Roma, children and women. It commended measures undertaken to combat discrimination and encouraged Czechia to consider broadening the Mediator's mandate to cover this issue.
37. Andorra welcomed Czechia's Action Plan for the Prevention of Domestic and Gender-motivated Violence for 2015-2018, and its new educational system for pupils with special needs. It encouraged continued efforts to strengthen inclusive education for children with disabilities.
38. Angola welcomed progress in promoting and protecting human rights since the second review, including in the areas of Roma and child rights, gender equality, and the fight against human trafficking and criminality. However, challenges remained.
39. Argentina welcomed the ratification of the International Convention for the Protection of all Persons from Enforced Disappearance. It noted the measures taken to combat discrimination.
40. Armenia commended steps undertaken to combat racism and hatred, measures taken to promote gender equality and ensure inclusive education for all, and the National Strategy for Combatting Trafficking in Human Beings for 2016-2019.
41. Australia commended Czechia for its long-standing commitment to protecting and promoting human rights. It welcomed the implementation of the Roma Integration Strategy 2015-20. It remained concerned by reports of poor prison conditions in the country.
42. Austria noted that the situation of Roma continues to be problematic. It enquired about efforts made to counter stereotypes and prejudices against Roma and to address discriminatory effects of the restitution legislation and practices. It noted worrying tendencies of hate speech and hate crimes.
43. Azerbaijan welcomed efforts regarding the implementation of several recommendations Czechia had accepted during the second review, including measures undertaken to enhance anti-discrimination action in the country, particularly the Roma Integration Strategy.
44. Bahrain welcomed efforts made to implement the recommendations of the previous review. It stressed the importance of showing seriousness in fighting instigation to hatred, racism and xenophobia, and noted an increase of acts of discrimination against minorities, including Roma.
45. Bangladesh noted a number of legislative and political interventions and stressed that more focus was required on the implementation front to deal with negative stereotypes and prejudices that minorities and migrants are still experiencing including « Islamophobia ».
46. Belarus noted that despite the anti-discrimination measures and efforts taken to combat social isolation, there were still numerous examples of discrimination on different grounds and of racism against migrants and minorities.
47. Belgium acknowledged some positive steps taken regarding the implementation of the recommendations made during the previous review. However, it noted that there was still room for progress on certain issues, such as the fight against all forms of discrimination.
48. Bosnia and Herzegovina commended the steps taken to strengthen human rights' protection and welcomed the strong commitment to combat human trafficking. It shared the concerns of treaty bodies over the low representation of women in decision-making processes.
49. Botswana noted the National Strategy to Protect Children's Rights and the National Strategy for Combatting Trafficking in Human Beings. It commended the promotion of equal representation of women and men in decision making positions and in the labour market. However, access to justice and remedies remain a challenge.
50. Brazil commended the adoption of the Roma Integration Strategy, though it expressed concern about reports that Roma continue to suffer from discrimination. Brazil acknowledged measures taken to improve the migration and refugee crisis, but was concerned about detention policies.

51. Bulgaria praised the adoption of several strategies in the areas of gender equality, including for balanced representation in decision-making positions, child rights, and migration. It requested information on the first Strategy on Prevention of and Solution to Homelessness and its implementation.

52. Canada welcomed anti-discrimination efforts, including the steps taken to prevent segregation of Roma children and promote their participation in mainstream schools. It noted that implementation and enforcement of laws prohibiting discrimination and crimes motivated by discrimination was essential.

53. Chile welcomed new ratifications and action plans on gender equality, the rights of the child, minorities and persons with disabilities. It remained concerned at the impact of prejudice and stereotyping on the fundamental rights of the Roma population and on refugees and asylum seekers.

54. China noted positive actions on legal reforms, plans and strategies. China remained concerned at the prevalence of gender inequality, the systematic discrimination affecting minorities and continued racial hatred and violence against the Roma; and that the rights of refugees and migrants were not effectively protected.

55. Côte d'Ivoire welcomed the recent ratification of several human rights treaties as well as the adoption of the Anti-Discrimination Act and the Strategy for Equality between Women and Men 2014-2020.

56. Croatia welcomed the mid-term review undertaken by Czechia and the measures taken to criminalize various forms of child abuse. It encouraged Czechia to further strengthen its legal framework in the area of the rights of the child. Croatia supported the efforts made in the area of anti-discrimination.

57. Cuba referred positively to the implementation of the Anti-Discrimination Act and the Roma Integration Strategy 2015-2020. Cuba echoed concerns raised regarding ongoing expressions of racism and xenophobia, which have been on the rise in recent years. The treatment afforded to these migrants has also received criticism from the High Commissioner for Human Rights.

58. Denmark, while welcoming initiatives to ensure an inclusive education system, was concerned that Roma Children continued to be overrepresented in special schools for children diagnosed with a mild mental disability.

59. Ecuador welcomed the delegation and thanked Czechia for the presentation of its report.

60. Egypt welcomed the participation of Czechia in the UPR.

61. Estonia, while welcoming efforts made to achieve gender equality, encouraged further efforts with regard to women's representation and to combating violence against women.

62. In its response, the Czech delegation indicated that major steps towards inclusive education were made, even though it remains a major challenge. The amendment to the School Act, which took effect in September 2016, provides inclusive education for all pupils with special needs, including Roma children with social disadvantages and children with disabilities. It secures the right of children with special needs, as diagnosed after psychological and educational evaluation, to obtain the necessary assistance to participate in mainstream education through a system of support measures. Free and mandatory pre-school year for all children was introduced as of September 2017.

63. Based on a review of the diagnostic of Roma children, 221 pupils were removed from the programme for children with mild mental disorder. Czechia will continue the diagnostic review process of Roma pupils to assess the individual needs of each child and place them in appropriate education. The reform leads to the continuous decrease of the number of special courses and classes for pupils with mild mental disabilities, and the increase of about 2 percent each year of the number of such children in mainstream classes. The delegation explained that the increase in the number of children enrolled in the programme for children with mild mental disorder is to be explained by the demographic growth rather than by the placement of children in such programme. The latter was discontinued in 2017, and no other child can be placed in this programme.

64. Sterilization is regulated by the Specific Medical Services Act of 2011 and requires the written and informed consent of the patient. A minimum gap of seven days (for sterilization for medical reasons) and 14 days (for sterilization for non-medical reasons) is required between the information and the consent for sterilization. Sterilization of people with diminished mental capacity is possible only when required by the health situation of the person. The written consent from the guardian, a professional committee and the court is required. Before adopting an opinion, the professional committee must discuss each individual case and verify that all conditions are fulfilled. In addition, the opinion of the concerned individual has to be taken into account.

65. Racism, xenophobia and islamophobia is addressed by a comprehensive legal framework, including special assistance to victims of hate crimes and specialized public prosecutors and police officers. It however continues to be a major issue in Czechia and became even more important during the migration crisis. To combat stereotypes and prejudices the Government launched the Campaign against Racism and Hate Violence from 2014 to 2017, which consisted of several activities, including the “Hate Free Culture” campaign disseminated through traditional and social media and targeting youth between 18 and 25 years of age, and educational and training activities for schools or the police. Liaison officers specifically trained in multicultural issues or in investigating hate crimes were appointed within the police to protect minorities from discrimination or identify discriminatory biased motivations.

66. The Government adopted the 2014-2020 Strategy for Equality Between Women and Men, complemented by two action plans on the prevention of domestic and gender-based violence and on equal representation of women and men in decision-making positions. Regarding the pay gap, existing legislation provides for equal pay, and the Government has launched a campaign called “22% to equality”. Further steps include care services for small children, parental benefit for fathers taking care of their children and paternity leave, as well as the promotion of flexible working arrangements.

67. The Anti-Discrimination Act protects against discrimination based on many grounds in many spheres of society, and provides judicial and administrative remedies for victims, who can be assisted in court by specialized NGOs and receive free legal representation and counselling. The Ombudsperson is also competent as regards discrimination. A new system of class action will be proposed in the near future.

68. The question of the accreditation of the Ombudsperson, which is compatible with the Paris Principles, is being discussed, as well as the possible establishment of an Ombudsperson for children.

69. Finland noted advances made on the access to and integration of Roma children in education and that there was room for further work on the implementation of the amendment to the Schools Act.

70. France welcomed recent progress made, for example in the education of Roma. It noted, nevertheless, that obstacles continue to exist in the situation of Roma, prisoners, and foreign workers.

71. Georgia welcomed the recent ratification of international instruments on the rights of the child and the adoption of the Government Strategy for Equality Between Women and Men and the Action Plan for the Prevention of Domestic and Gender-motivated Violence.

72. Germany welcomed the adoption of the National Strategy to Protect Children’s Rights, including the commitments to develop foster care systems.

73. Ghana welcomed initiatives taken to ratify human rights treaties. Ghana urged Czechia to ensure that the legal aid system makes provision to bring to justice promoters of discrimination and hate violence, especially against the Roma; and to end the detention of all children, whether accompanied, unaccompanied or separated.

74. Greece commended the steps taken with regard to Czechia's international obligations. It appreciated the adoption of the Anti-Discrimination Act as well as the steps taken towards eliminating discriminatory practices in housing and employment.
75. Guatemala noted with concern reports on continuous racial hatred and violence perpetrated against Roma people, the spread of stereotypes and prejudices against refugees and asylum seekers through websites and social media, as well as the increased number of islamophobic expressions.
76. Honduras highlighted the Government's efforts to put an end to the segregation of the Roma community and to ratify various protocols for the protection of human rights.
77. Hungary asked how the new class action system can contribute to combating discrimination and expressed concerns about reports of Romani children still placed in specialized schools. While praising policies and financial support for national minorities, it encouraged to foster tolerance and understanding towards regional or minority languages and cultures.
78. Iceland commended Czechia for its success in implementing the commitments made following the UPR held in October 2012.
79. India saluted the ratification of several instruments and the introduction of measures contributing to reducing poverty. India commended initiatives to combat sexual exploitation of children and discrimination, including against women and Roma people. It remained concerned, however, at the enforcement of legislation and difficulties faced by the Roma community.
80. Indonesia expressed its appreciation for the adoption of the Roma Integration Strategy 2015-2020 and the adoption of the National Strategy for Combating Trafficking in Human Beings for 2016-2019.
81. The Islamic Republic of Iran was concerned about the continuing racial hatred and racially motivated violence, particularly against the Roma and Muslims communities, women and children sexual abuse, human trafficking, and insufficient access to subsidized municipal housing.
82. Iraq welcomed measures taken to combat racial discrimination, and the adoption of Government's strategies, including for the inclusion of the Roma people, on child's rights, as well as against human trafficking.
83. Ireland welcomed the advances made on children's rights but regretted that Czechia had not yet implemented recommendations regarding the creation of an Ombudsman for Children's Rights. It welcomed reforms to improve access for Roma children to mainstream education but noted that some practices of concern continue.
84. Israel took note of the serious work done in protecting the rights of members of the Roma community, inter alia through the Roma Integration Strategy 2015-2020. Israel also took note of the important campaign against racism and hate crimes launched in 2014 until 2017.
85. Italy welcomed the signature of the Council of Europe Convention on preventing and combating violence against women and domestic violence, the ratification of the Council of Europe Convention on Protection of Children against Sexual Exploitation and Sexual Abuse, and the adoption of measures to protect the rights of vulnerable groups.
86. Libya commended the progress made in the field of human rights, including the adoption of legislation and the ratification of the Convention on the Rights of the Child.
87. Malaysia welcomed the efforts undertaken by Czechia, including to ensure that domestic legal frameworks are in place to fulfil its international human rights obligations. It welcomed positive developments in the area of social inclusion and protection of the rights of vulnerable groups.
88. Maldives was encouraged by the positive steps taken in advancing children's rights, including the amended School Act, and gender equality, noting the Government's Strategy for Equality Between Women and Men for 2014-2020.

89. Mexico commended the ratification of several instruments related to the rights of the child and welcomed efforts to prevent human trafficking and support victims. It expressed concern about the resurgence of xenophobic and racist hate speech worldwide, including in Czechia.
90. Mongolia, while welcoming measures taken to tackle discrimination against Roma minorities, considered it important to provide training to teachers with specific focus on ethnicity. It remained concerned at significant gender equality disparities, despite efforts made.
91. Montenegro welcomed steps undertaken to improve the institutional and legislative human rights framework, including for the rights of children, and commended activities to combat discrimination and protect victims. It noted that Roma continue to be the main victims of racially motivated violence.
92. Morocco praised the efforts made in the promotion and protection of human rights and the presentation in 2015 of a mid-term UPR report. Morocco also appreciated the importance given to strengthening the institutional framework and commended the establishment of the Ombudsperson's office.
93. Namibia commended the progress made since the last UPR review including the ratification of various international human rights instruments.
94. Nepal welcomed the ratification of international instruments and the adoption of several strategic measures. Nepal highlighted efforts made to combat discrimination and shun violence. It noted that Czechia could gear up its contribution to meet the global target for development assistance.
95. The Netherlands commended the measures taken to combat discrimination, including on the basis of sexual orientation and gender identity. It appreciated efforts to ensure gender equality and endeavours to increase the inclusion of Roma, but noted that Roma continue to be a disadvantaged group.
96. Nicaragua saluted the important progress made since the last UPR review, including the formulation and implementation of the Strategy for Equality between Women and Men (2014–2020) and the National Strategy for Combating Trafficking in Human Beings (2016–2019).
97. Norway commended the amendment to the Education Act on special educational needs, supported the work of the Public Defender of Rights, recognized efforts made to ensure gender equality, and supported the amendment to the Education Act on preschool education.
98. Peru commended the progress achieved in ensuring gender equality and the numerous measures taken to achieve the full integration of the Roma population and welcomed the adoption of the Roma Integration Strategy 2015–2020.
99. The Philippines noted the efforts to revise domestic legislation to make it consistent with its international human rights obligations, and the strong commitment to combat human trafficking. It encouraged Czechia to continue strengthening institutional structures.
100. Portugal commended the continued efforts concerning inclusive education and efforts to combat racism, violence and hatred, in particular through campaigns to combat xenophobia and islamophobia.
101. The Republic of Korea recognized efforts to implement previous cycle's recommendations, including through legislation and national action plans or strategies to better address social and economic issues. It noted the Education Act and appreciated recent improvement in terms of gender equality.
102. The Republic of Moldova commended the strong focus on human rights policies, in particular the measures aimed at strengthening the child protection system, and the Government strong commitment to end institutionalization of children. It also appreciated efforts to train officers working with vulnerable children.

103. Romania appreciated the measures adopted following the second UPR cycle and asked if, after almost three years since the adoption of the Strategy for Equality between Women and Men 2014-2020, there was a mid-term assessment of its implementation.

104. The Russian Federation was seriously concerned with the violations of the rights of national and ethnic minorities in Czechia, with the poor conditions in temporary camps for refugees, and with the conditions of detention in penitentiaries and in pre-trial detention facilities.

105. Senegal noted the great political will shown by Czechia to implement the recommendations accepted during the second UPR cycle, highlighting in particular the ratification of several international human rights instruments and the measures aimed at combating all forms of discrimination.

106. Serbia was pleased with the activities related to Roma integration and commended the steps aimed at monitoring and assessing the Roma Integration Strategy. It encouraged Czechia to continue to look for ways to ensure the most efficient protection for victims of discrimination. Serbia welcomed measures on gender equality.

107. Sierra Leone encouraged Czechia to intensify its efforts for the implementation of the Roma Integration Strategy, to standardize identification and protection measures for victims of trafficking, to ratify the Istanbul Convention, and to quell hate speech and Islamophobia.

108. Slovakia welcomed the adoption of the Roma Integration Strategy, the Inclusive Education Action Plan, the amendment to the School Act and the Migration Policy Strategy, as well as the amendments to the Criminal Code providing for punishment of racially motivated crimes and the prohibition of discrimination against persons with disabilities.

109. The Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela welcomed the Czech delegation.

110. On the issue of Roma integration, the Czech delegation stated that Czechia adopted a Strategy in 2014 covering education, employment, housing, health and social services, and their life as a national minority and public participation. The Department for Social Inclusion establishes local strategic social inclusion plans through local partnerships with municipalities.

111. As regards the rights of the child, Czechia adopted a National Strategy (2013-2018), accompanied by legislative changes such as the Social and Legal Protection Act, which provides that institutional care is a measure of last resort and applied by court decision only. Institutionalization of children under the age of 3 is still possible but alternatives are considered. The commercial sexual exploitation or prostitution of children is criminalized as human trafficking and non-commercial sexual abuse of children constitutes a specific criminal offence with aggravating circumstance entailing a more severe punishment. Child victims fall in the category of particularly vulnerable victims and enjoy reinforced legal protection.

112. There is a system of alternatives to detention for asylum seekers under both the Asylum and Aliens Acts, detention being a measure of last resort. Detention of families has been rare since 2016, and the detention of asylum-seeking families is prohibited under the Asylum Act. Foreigners and asylum seekers are not detained in regular prisons. The funding of detention centres has increased.

113. Overcrowding in prisons is still an issue, and alternatives to detention are sought, such as electronic monitoring system and increased use of monetary punishments. Improvements of prison settings are under way, including regarding pre-trial detention.

114. In conclusion, the Deputy Minister thanked Czech civil society and the Ombudsman, who contributed to the implementation of the recommendations received at the previous cycle, and the delegations for their questions, comments and recommendations, which will give impulse for overcoming the challenges that remain. Czechia proudly presented advancements in the field of human rights, while admitting challenges the country continues to face, including with regard to Roma inclusion, public expression of xenophobia and intolerance, the migrant crisis or the issue of social housing. It pledged to submit an interim implementation report in 2020, and to brief the Human Rights Council in March 2019, under item 6 of its programme of work, on early implementation of several of the accepted recommendations.

II. Conclusions and/or recommendations
